Lucas Talks Of Holding Congress Till November

Sabath Discounts Thanksgiving Date, Joins in Blast at Legislation Block

By Coleman B. Jones
NYHT News Service

Determination to try to hold Congress in session "until Thanksgiving time" if necessary to get action on major Administration proposals now tangled in the unprecedented legislative logjam was expressed last night by Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.).

The Democratic floor leader of the Senate, where the logjam is centered, discussed the Congressional situation on two radio broadcasts. One was over the American Broadcasting System network with Speaker Sam Rayburn, of Texas, substituting for Drew Pearson, who is on vacation. The other was over station WCFL of Chicago, with Representative Adolph J. Sabath (D., Ill.), chairman of the House Rules Committee.

Scores 'Unholy Alliance'

Representative Sabath, who, with speaker Rayburn and Representative John W. McCormack, of Massachusetts, majority floor leader, shares top rank in the Democratic organization of the House, differed with Senator Lucas on one point, expressing belief that "we will get out of here sometime around the first of September."

Calling it an "unholy alliance," however, he joined wholeheartedly with Senator Lucas in denouncing the "reactionary" coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats which has deprived the Administration of a "working majority" in either chamber and blocked enactment of most of President Truman's campaign promises.

Situation "Embarrassing"

Senator Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.) chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, in an interview, appeared to share Sabath's hope that adjournment would not be delayed until Thanksgiving.

The difficulties of the Senate leadership with respect to six appropriation bills, meanwhile, were emphasized anew in another broadcast—over station WWDC—by Senator John L. McClellan (D., Ark.) sponsor of a pending resolution to force a cut of 5 to 10 percent in this year's spending program.

Senator McClellan announced that he would move formally in the

From Lobbyist's Funds

Ex-Sen. Ball Received $3475 Of Sums to Defeat T-H Repeal

By the United Press

Former Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.) who helped draft the Taft-Hartley Labor Law, this year received $3475 from sums paid by General Motors Corp. and General Electric Co. to help defeat its repeal, it was revealed yesterday.

Regular reports of lobbyists to Congress disclosed that Gerard D. Reilly received $13,864 from the two corporations during April, May and June for his work on the Taft-Hartley repealer.

Reilly, a former member of the National Labor Relations Board, helped write the Taft-Hartley Act as a special counsel to the Senate Labor Committee during the Republican-steered Eightieth Congress. He now is in private law practice here.

Lists Two Payments to Ball

Under the law, registered lobbyists are required to state how they spend their money. Under this heading Reilly lists two payments to "Joseph H. Ball."

From the $7864 he said he got from General Electric, Reilly listed a payment of $1737.50 to Ball. He listed another $1737.50 payment to Ball in spending $6000 received from General Motors.

A secretary in Reilly's office said the money was paid to Ball for an "analysis and digest" of the Senate Labor Committee hearings on the Administration's Taft-Hartley repealer.

She said Ball was not considered a member of Reilly's firm, but that Reilly had asked the former Senator to do the job because of his own lack of time.

Now in Minnesota

She said Ball had done the work while he was in Washington last spring. The former Senator now is at his rural home in Minnesota.

Lobbying is legal so long as those engaged in seeking to influence legislation register and list their expenditures. There is nothing to prevent a lobbyist from hiring anyone he chooses to help in his work, nor is there anything illegal in doing such work for a lobbyist.

Ball was defeated for reelection last year by Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.), who had the support of labor leaders bitter at Ball for his sponsorship of even stronger labor legislation than the Taft-Hartley Act.

Intended to Write

The tall, former newspaperman said when he left Congress he intended to write. He told St. Paul newspapers recently he is spending his time writing fiction.

Reilly was a solicitor for the Department of Labor prior to his congressional work on the Taft-Hartley law and his subsequent lobbying activities. His report for April, May and June shows that of the $13,864 he received from General Motors and General Electric for work on labor legislation, he spent $5260.

Death Toll 80 As New Fires Rage in France

Troops, Civilians Fight Flames; Home Area of Premier Hit

From Press Dispatches.

Bordeaux, France, Aug. 21.—Forest fires in southern France have taken more than 80 lives, it was announced tonight.

New fires broke out tonight over a 750-acre tract in Correze Department, home of Premier Henri Queuille, who is there now on a holiday. This area, near Limoges, has been hard hit by a drought.

The French press agency (AFP) said more than 100,000 acres have been burned over. Some 1500 troops and hundreds of civilians are fighting the fires.

Paris newspapers put the number of those killed in the fires, which started southwest of Bordeaux, at close to 100. Many others have been seriously injured.

Additional bodies of soldier firefighters have been found burned beyond recognition. Latest reports listed more than 40 civilians and 40 soldiers found dead during a week-long struggle to halt the blaze.

Companies of volunteer firemen were being rushed into the area tonight. Troops were being convoyed to the scene.

The bodies of 12 soldiers were found huddled together where they had been trapped by a sudden change of wind.

Twenty-six civilian victims came from the village of Canejean in the Gironde Department. Some families there lost all their men and boys. They, too, were trapped when the wind switched suddenly.

A score of communities was said to have been destroyed during the past seven days. The principal disaster area is a rectangle 20 miles wide and 30 miles long near the Spanish border.

1300 Fight Forest Fires In 2 National Parks

More than 1300 men were fighting a series of forest fires in Yellowstone National Park and Payette Forest last night. The fires, set by lightning, covered 8000 acres. Three firefighters were injured. Details on page 7.

Nazi-Like Deal Given Martin, Report Says

B-36 Document Allegedly Supports Favoritism Charge

By the United Press

Another anonymous document—this one bringing the name of airplane builder Glenn L. Martin into the investigation of alleged irregularities in B-36 bomber procurement—is under study by the House Armed Services Committee, it was disclosed yesterday.

The document was turned over to the committee by Representative James E. Van Zandt (R., Pa.), a naval reserve captain who first raised "ugly" rumors about B-36 purchases and demanded an investigation.

It alleges among other things that at a recent conference Secretary of Air W. Stuart Symington dealt with Martin, noted Baltimore plane maker, in a manner "familiar to Russia and Nazi Germany."

Favoritism Charged

The document, second such turned over to the committee, apparently purported to substantiate charges of political favoritism and coercion in Air Force purchase of B-36s from the Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp., Fort Worth, Tex.

Symington and Martin did hold a conference on May 19 in the office of Undersecretary of Defense Stephen T. Early, a week before Van Zandt raised his charges on the House floor. Others present were Brig. Gen. Joseph Carroll, head of the Air Force's office of special investigation, and Joseph Little, Martin's attorney.

But the purpose of the conference was not divulged, nor is it known on what grounds the author of the unsigned document charged Symington with dealing harshly with Martin.

Rumors Recounted

Van Zandt personally handed this document to committee counsel to aid them in tracking down the "ugly rumors" he had heard. The first anonymous paper, placed in the committee record several weeks ago, was received in the mail by Representative Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.).

The new document recounts rumors similar to those in the first document, but this time makes an issue of the Symington-Martin conference.

The committee resumes hearings today. A subcommittee returned here yesterday after a week on the West Coast during which public hearings failed to develop factual support of the charges so far aired.

China Paper Assailed by 4 Senators

State Department Report Denounced As 'Whitewash of Do-Nothing Policy'

By The Associated Press

Four ranking senators bitterly denounced yesterday the State Department's White Paper on China as a "whitewash of a wishful, do-nothing policy."

They demanded "immediate and adequate military aid" for the Chinese government which the White Paper assailed.

The four, Senators Bridges (R., N. H.), McCarran (D., Nev.), Wherry (R., Nebr.) and Knowland (R., Calif.), said in a joint statement that "instead of facing facts in China, and admitting its error, the State Department still buries its head in the sand and issues a White Paper." They directed strong personal criticism at Secretary of State Acheson.

The White Paper, issued August 5, blamed China's long series of reverses at the hands of Chinese Communists on asserted political, economic and military ineptitude of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government. The State Department, in addition, turned thumbs down on any further aid to the government, pending the developing of a new long-range policy for dealing with the Red menace.

U. S. Position Rejected

The four Senators rejected flatly this position. They contended that "our own welfare no less than China's" demands a halt to what they called a "master plan of Soviet conquest" in Asia. It is high time, they said, to bolster free areas of China, and unify neighboring countries for defense against the Reds.

Two of the Senators—Knowland and Bridges—are members of the Senate Armed Services Committee, which will meet Tuesday with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to begin drafting a foreign arms bill. Wherry is GOP floor leader, and McCarran the chairman of the joint Senate-House foreign spending "watchdog" committee.

Knowland already has submitted an amendment to the arms bill which would earmark 173 million dollars of the authorization for China. But he faces an uphill battle to get either the 173 million dollars or any smaller amount approved.

Yesterday's joint statement criticized Acheson for "vacillating when the situation cries aloud for decisive, forthright action to retrieve losses already sustained." The statement added:

"There is no publicly revealed evidence that Secretary Acheson is making any forthright efforts for unifying China's neighbors against the oncoming Red armies.

"His efforts to make Chiang Kai-shek a scapegoat for the blunders of present and past Administra-

U. S. Studying A-Bomb 'Base' In Britain

Plan Would Retain Exclusively American Control of Weapon

By the United Press

High United States officials are discussing the possibility of "basing" atomic bombs in Britain, but under safeguards to keep them under exclusive American control, it was revealed yesterday on good authority.

Key members of Congress, who already have held several informal conferences with top Administration officials on the question, regard it as one of the basic issues to be faced in connection with joint-defense planning under the North Atlantic Security Pact.

The role of the A-bomb in discouraging Russian aggression against Western Europe may come in for further discussion when the combined Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees meet behind closed doors Tuesday to begin final work on President Truman's $1,450,000,000 arms aid program.

Persons in close touch with the situation report that so far no decision has been reached on whether the United States can meet its responsibility by keeping its atomic weapons hoarded in this country, or whether it should stockpile some bombs closer to the Cold War front lines in Britain.

But it can be stated that a strong bipartisan bloc in the Congressional Atomic Energy Committee is favorable to the idea of basing bombs in Britain, provided United States personnel retain complete control over storage, upkeep, security and use of the weapons.

The Atomic Energy Act of 1946 forbids export of fissionable materials, which are the explosive core of atomic bombs. But informed Congressmen, including some who have been hostile to Administration proposals for sharing atomic information with Britain, believe the law would permit President Truman to order bombs shipped anywhere in the world so long as they remained under United States control.

It was not made clear whether the United States has approached Britain to learn whether the British would consent to such an arrangement.

Finnish Reds Say Helsinki Plots War

Party Organ Charges Action Against Strikers Aimed at Soviet Russia

Helsinki, Finland, Aug. 21 (AP).—The Communists' official newspaper today charged that Finnish police action against Communist-led strikers is aimed at preparing for war against the Soviet Union.

The charge was made by the party organ, Tykansan Sanomat. This followed up the party's call yesterday for anti-Government rallies to protest against the "terror, violence and murders" Communists said had a part in efforts of the Government to end the strikes.

The strike front was obviously weakening.

The walkouts, which Premier Karl August Fagerholm's Social Democratic Government charged were aimed at laying the groundwork for a Communist coup, lost potency under back-to-work orders by Finland's Central Trade Union Federation.

The Communists had hoped to pull out at least 100,000 of Finland's 300,000 unionized workers in a day-by-day strike movement, but the peak figure was estimated in mid-week at 45,000.

(Pravda and other Moscow newspapers said the Finnish strike "is widening and embracing new enterprises" and will continue to expand despite all efforts of the government to break it.)

Communist newspapers followed up the theme of the party executive committee, which notified President Juho K. Paasikivi yesterday that the antistrike measures of the government "openly violate provisions of the peace treaty" Finland signed with Russia and Britain in 1944.

(This treaty provides that disputes over interpretations shall be settled by Britain and Russia with the aid of some other nation if the two are unable to agree.)

Tykansan Sanomat said "the police terror" was aimed at crushing peace-loving elements to prepare the way for war against Russia. The paper said it is generally stated in Stockholm, capital of Sweden, that the "terrorist policy" is part of Anglo-American imperialistic activity and is used in an attempt to strengthen the North Atlantic Alliance.

Note Blasts 'Slanders And Lies' On Austria

Communists' Feud Takes on New Fury As Belgrade Charges "Sellout" by Moscow

From Press Dispatches

Belgrade, Aug. 21.—Marshal Tito called Marshal Stalin a double-crosser today in the latest episode of their verbal feud.

A new Yugoslav note said Russia, "behind the back of the Yugoslav government," had abandoned support of Yugoslav claims against Austria. This new note was in reply to a Soviet note of August 11 declaring Yugoslavia now is considered an enemy of the Soviet Union.

In reply, Tito declared: "The enemy attitude of the Soviet government toward Yugoslavia is now known."

Marshal Tito has not yet replied to the Moscow note of last night calling for overthrow of Tito leadership in Yugoslavia and threatening "more effective measures" than diplomatic exchanges unless alleged mistreatment of Russians in Yugoslavia stops.

But tonight Tito's Communist Party newspaper, Borba, accused Russia of using Soviet citizens in Yugoslavia as spies.

The editorial said yesterday's Russian note was full of "vile language, insults and threats" and was delivered in an insulting fashion—handed to a Yugoslav Foreign Ministry doorman at 5 a. m.

Russians Hear of Threat Of 'Effective Measures'

Moscow, Aug. 21 (AP).—Muscovites crowded in front of public bulletin boards today and read with avid interest a Soviet threat to take "more effective measures" than direct diplomatic exchanges to protect Russians in Yugoslavia from alleged mistreatment.

Foreign observers expressed belief the government is determined to make good its threat.

They pointed out that the Russian threat was flat and categoric. They feel that action calculated to be "effective" may come soon.

Belgrade's latest note charged the Kremlin sold out Yugoslav interests in Slovene Carinthia (southern Austria) to assure "agreement on its own claims to German assets in Austria" from other members of the Big Four.

It bristled with such terms as "lies and slanders," "distortions of the truth" and "unworthy insinuations" in replying to Moscow's charges.

Election Victors In West Germany Bar Socialists

Bonn, Germany, Aug. 21 (U.P.)—The Christian Democrats, largest political party in western Germany, announced today they had decided against forming a coalition government with the rival Socialist Party because they did not want "Socialist experiments" in the new West German government.

Twenty top Christian Democratic executives, whose party won the major share of the votes in last Sunday's parliamentary election, agreed to form an exclusive right-wing cabinet for Germany west of the Iron Curtain.

Christian Democratic leader Konrad Adenauer presided over the conference.

The flat "no" to a broad coalition was expected to drive the powerful Social Democratic Party and its vitriolic chief, Kurt Schumacher, into the opposition.

Jacob Kaiser, one of the top party leaders, told the United Press that the Christian Democratic executive committee had agreed to back Adenauer for the post of first prime minister of western Germany.

Severe Quakes Rock Valley in British Columbia

Prince Rupert, B. C., Aug. 21 (AP).—A series of earthquakes, described as among the worst in northern British Columbia history, rocked the Skeena River Valley for five minutes tonight at 9:05 P.M. (PDT).

There were no immediate reports of major damage or casualties. At Terrace, 90 miles east of here, the 1,800 residents were thrown into panic as buildings rocked and parked cars rolled back and forth in the streets.

Pacific, 35 miles eastward from Terrace, also was shaken. Communications with that small community were temporarily interrupted and no word of the effects could be quickly obtained.

Seattle, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—A slight earthquake rocked the Seattle area at 12:15 a.m. EDT.

The fire department said water mains on the east side of Lake Union had broken, and houseboats were broken loose.

The police department said its telephone switchboards were flooded with calls from worried residents.

Pearl Harbor a High Spot

WCTU Is Told Drinking Led To Allied Disasters in War

Philadelphia, Aug. 21 (AP).—The Woman's Christian Temperance Union was told tonight that drinking brought on a host of "disasters and near-disasters to the Allied armies" in World War II.

In an address at WCTU's seventy-fifth national convention, H. Cecil Heath of London, general secretary of the United Kingdom (Temperance) Alliance, asserted:

"Authorities are trying to obscure the part played by alcohol during World War II in all sections of the armed forces of every belligerent state."

"The unpleasant truth," Heath said, "can be discovered from court-martial records and other official archives."

And, said Heath:

"It is unnecessary to remind an American audience of the part drink played in the Pearl Harbor episode, nor to enlarge on the fact that an American major general was reduced to the rank of lieutenant colonel and sent home from Europe for disclosing the date of the invasion at a cocktail party.

"He had been one of the commanders of the American Air Force in Britain."

Heath did not elaborate on either incident in his address, but said later that the incident of the dismissal of the major general is available on official records, as is his identity.

He said the incident was revealed by supreme headquarters, AEF, on June 7, 1944. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower ordered the general's dismissal and reduction in rank, Heath related.

$827,270 Boost Over 1949

$44.3 Million U. N. Budget Proposed for 1950 by Lie

Lake Success, N. Y., Aug. 21 (U.P.).—United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie tonight proposed an expanded U. N. budget of $44,314,398 for next year.

The estimate, which will come before the General Assembly next month, was $827,270 higher than the budget for 1949. The increase was due mainly to enlarged plans for technical aid to underdeveloped areas and the projected hiring of 195 new staff members.

Lie's budget drew some strong criticism in a report issued simultaneously by the standing committee of budgetary experts, which particularly attacked "expansionist tendencies" in some U. N. departments.

This nine-man watch-dog group, which operates independently of Lie's secretariat staff, recommended that $1,786,750 be squeezed out of Lie's budget figure, mainly from outlays for "staff, services and equipment" at main headquarters here.

It did not touch Lie's estimate for new personnel he hopes to take on for implementing expanded technical-aid projects.

The committee said it noted a persistent, dangerous trend whereby some individual members of Lie's high command—assistant secretaries-general and top directors—were building oversized, self-contained administrative machines about them.

Asked for comment on the experts' charges, Lie said he did not think the budget committee was right.

Lie said he did not know which departments were supposed to be growing too big. He said there might be "quite natural reasons" why some were bigger than others, but he promised to look into the matter.

Lie said he is recommending increase of the total U.N. staff from 3717 to 3912 in order "to meet specific new workloads."

The 1950 budget estimate for the technical-aid programs comes to $676,000 compared with $307,000 for 1949.

Lie expressed the hope that all U. N. organs would heed the general assembly recommendation to keep tight rein on the number of formal meetings and hold them at regular headquarters.

Heeds Vatican Decree

Polish Official Quits Post, Asks Religious Asylum in U. S.

NYHT News Service

The director of protocol in the Polish Foreign Office, heeding the Vatican's excommunication decree, has resigned his post and has formally asked religious asylum in this country for himself and his family.

The official, Adam Gubrinowicz, a career diplomat who had held his present post since 1945, made his application to the United States Legation in Berne, Switzerland, where he has sought temporary refuge. The legation has communicated the application to the State Department which must decide whether Gubrinowicz qualifies for entry to the United States as a religious or political refuge.

A State Department official said it is believed Gubrinowicz, his wife and daughter went to Switzerland before he announced his resignation. He had been a member of the Foreign Office in Warsaw for some 20 years.

Arthur Bliss Lane, former United States Ambassador to Poland, said yesterday he had received a cable from the former Polish official.

"As a Catholic," it stated, "and in view of the Vatican's excommunication decree, it is impossible now for me to continue my work in Warsaw as director of protocol."

The Vatican order which prompted his resignation was issued July 13. In it Pope Pius XII invoked major excommunication—denying the sacraments of the church—against Communists anywhere in the world who also are Roman Catholics.

Railroads Hopeful Rates Will Suffice

By the United Press

President William T. Faricy of the Association of American Railroads, said yesterday the railroads will "try to get along" without further freight rate increases, although the final decision will hinge on new wage scales to become effective September 1.

He said freight traffic dropped 12 per cent during the first six months of this year and that the carriers realized only 2.65 per cent return on "depreciated property investment" during the same period.

Faricy made the statements in reply to questions dealing with freight rate increases granted the railroads since the war, the effect of the raises on the carriers' previous financial status, and the possibility of additional wage hikes.

The Interstate Commerce Commission on August 11 authorized a 4 per cent freight rate increase, to become effective September 1, when nonoperating empolyes for the first time in history go on a 40-hour week. This increase will mean that freight rates have risen 57 per cent since the war, giving the carriers an additional $3,086,000,000 in annual revenues.

Asked to what extent freight rate and passenger fares increases had kept pace with the railroads' increased operating costs, Faricy replied:

"The disparity is clearly demonstrated by the fact that, on the basis of current estimates, the railroads will handle in 1949 about 20 per cent more ton-miles and nearly 50 per cent more passenger miles than in 1940, yet will undoubtedly earn a lesser net railway operating income." The rate of return earned in 1940 was less than 3 per cent he said.

Steel Buying Is Reported On Upswing

Cleveland, Aug. 21 (AP).—Increased steel buying is spreading, even to items that have been progressively sluggish, Steel magazine said today.

In its weekly summary of the metalworking industry, Steel said that scrap, traditional barometer for steel, also is showing new strength.

"Whether the pickup signals a definite turn in the steel market still is anyone's guess," the magazine added, "but there is no doubt it is showing trade sentiment in the face of uncertainties arising from the tense situation in the steel-labor dispute."

Factors contributing to the heavier buying were listed as:

1. Consumers taking more steel as insurance against a possible September strike.
2. An increase in end-use requirements.
3. More active specifying as the result of seasonal expansion.
4. Replacement because of low inventories.

Although demand still is sluggish compared with the beginning of the year, the volume considerably exceeds expectations of a month or so ago, Steel continued.

The magazine said that peaceful settlement of the steel dispute might result in cutbacks in demand, but it probably would encourage a general business expansion.

Truman Backing for GOP Man Seen in Ohio Anti-Taft Race

By the United Press

President Truman was reported yesterday to be backing Murray Lincoln, president of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation and vice president of Americans for Democratic Action, to run against Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) in 1950.

Political sources said Lincoln, who is popular with Ohio labor organizations, is "receptive" but will not make the race unless he is assured a clear field in the Ohio Democratic primary.

These sources said a "deal" to get other prospective Democratic Senate contenders to withdraw is in the making, with "excellent" chances of success, in which event Lincoln will announce his candidacy.

Mr. Truman is understood to have given his personal backing to Lincoln in talks with ADA officials here. ADA leaders believe Lincoln is perhaps the only man in Ohio who could defeat Taft since popular Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche has refused to run.

Lincoln is a registered Republican but would run on the Democratic ticket against Taft. Labor groups in Ohio, who are leading a crusade to "get" Taft, the coauthor of the Taft-Hartley labor law, are known to believe Lincoln can defeat the powerful Senate GOP policy chief.

Taft, son of the late President William Howard Taft, is looked on by many as "Mr. Republican" because of his prominent part in forming party policy in Congress and defending the GOP viewpoint nationally.

The results of efforts to unseat him will be considered by both major parties as a signpost to the presidential outlook in 1952. Democrats therefore are out to get the strongest possible candidate to oppose the outspoken Ohioan.

Backers of Lincoln are mindful of the magic of the "Lincoln" name. They say he would be able to swing the farm as well as the labor vote because of his powerful place in a leading farm organization as well as his leadership in the prolabor ADA.

He also is president of the Cooperative League of the USA and is considered popular with Ohio's many cooperative groups.

Own Scientist Near Mt. Ararat, Reds Disclose

London, Aug. 21 (AP).—The Russians, who get nervous when foreigners head for Biblical Mount Ararat just across the border in Turkey, tonight revealed one of their scientists has been digging close to it.

Tass, official Soviet news agency, in a dispatch from Erevan, in South Armenia, said the scientist has unearthed evidence Stone Age men lived near Ararat. This presumably was long before Noah's Ark is supposed to have landed on the mountain after the flood.

Tass said the Russian scientist, identified as one Sardaryan, has just finished six years of excavations on the southwestern slopes of Mount Ararat and in a nearby valley. The dispatch said he had found stone tools "representing all epochs of the Paleolithic" or Old Stone Age. This age ended aobut 10,000 B. C. and is estimated to have lasted anywhere from 500,000 to 1,500,000 years.

Reds' Lawyers Reply to Tom Clark's Attack

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—Five defense lawyers in the Communist conspiracy trial charged today that Tom Clark, former Attorney General, has tried to intimidate American lawyers into abandoning "the protection of the liberties of our people."

The lawyers wrote an open letter to Look magazine in answer to a Look article by Clark.

The letter was signed by George W. Crockett, jr., Detroit; Richard Gladstein, San Francisco; Abraham J. Isserman, Newark, N. J.; Louis F. McCabe, Philadelphia, and Harry Sacher, New York.

Clark Statement Scored

They are counsel for 11 top Communist leaders on trial in Federal court on charges of conspiracy to advocate violent overthrow of the Government.

Their letter took partaicular exception to this declaration in last week's article by Clark, who is now waiting to be sworn in as a Supreme Court justice:

"Lawyers who are not provably card-carrying Communists, but who act like Communists, and carry out Communist missions in offensives against the dignity and order of our courts, should be scrutinized by grievance committees of the bar and the courts."

Federal Judge Harold R. Medina, presiding at the seven-month conspiracy trial, has rebuked defense lawyers repeatedly for their tactics. He also has intimated possible action against them after the trial is over.

Defense Lawyers' Answer

The defense lawyers' answer to Clark said in part:

"Referring to the defense in our courts of persons who are Communists, actually or allegedly, he suggests the disbarment of the defense lawyers. Indeed, he shows that he has already taken steps directed toward this end.

"It would be deplorable commentary upon the stake of the public mind if the efforts of defense attorneys to present the contentions of their clients were deemed to be 'destructive tactics.'

"Clark's obvious expectation of the public acceptance of his views can be explained only by the existence of a widespread hysteria which he has done so much to create."

Strike Dries Up 4000 Chicago Gas Stations

Chicago, Aug. 21 (AP).—Chicagoans were scraping the bottoms of the gasoline drums today, as AFL oil and gas trucks drivers tightened their 11-day strike.

Sunday auto traffic in the city was the lightest since wartime gas ration days. At the few stations still open, motorists lined up for three blocks and waited sometimes three hours to get half a tankful.

Most of the city's 4000 gas stations were dry.

Doctors complained they were unable to get gasoline. The impact of a fuel oil shortage was beginning to be felt by business firms. A laundry stopped operations Saturday, and several others said they'd have to quit when their low fuel supplies ran out.

Yesterday union drivers operating under new contracts with independent retail gas and oil dealers stopped work. This move dried up the trickle of gasoline from refiners and bulk plants to the service stations.

H. E. Bill Wood, secretary of Local 705, key unit of the nine striking teamsters' union locals, said the special contract truckers stopped deliveries because of pressure by other union members, owners of dry gasoline stations.

Kefauver to Attend Meeting in Europe

Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.) said Friday he will leave for Europe about September 1 to attend a meeting of the Interparliamentary Union.

The Interparliamentary Union is made up of nations having Congresses or Parliaments. Senator Kefauver was a delegate in 1945 when the meeting was held at Cairo.

U. S. Won't Press Israel, Zionist Says

Pact Going Into Effect This Week

By the United Press

United States officials said yesterday that four nations are expected to deposit their ratifications of the North Atlantic treaty here this week, bringing the pact formally into force.

They said France, Denmark, Portugal and Italy planned to turn in their ratifications at the State Department simultaneously, probably either Monday or Tuesday.

President Truman will immediately issue a proclamation declaring the 12-nation security pact in force. Ratifications of the other nations—Canada, Belgium, The Netherlands, Iceland, Norway, Luxembourg, the United Kingdom and the United States—already are on deposit in the treaty archives of the department.

It is the United States view that a 12-nation "working party" to draft proposals for establishment of a pact organization should meet this week, soon after the last ratification is deposited.

This group would prepare the way for a meeting of the treaty council, made up of the foreign ministers of the 12 nations. United States officials believe that this important meeting will take place in Washington, probably about September 15.

These officials expect that treaty machinery will be kept to a minimum, and that no permanent body, other than the defense organization, will be set up. While the treaty provides for economic collaboration among the 12 countries, the United States position is that there should be no duplication of the work of the Office of European Cooperation—the Marshall Plan administrative unit.

New York, Aug. 21 (AP)—The head of the Zionist Organization of America said today he has been assured the United States will not bring pressure on Israel to admit a specified number of Arab refugees.

He also said he got assurances from a high State Department officer that the United States will not pressure Israel to give up any part of the Negev area.

Daniel Frisch, ZOA president, identified the State Department official as George McGhee, head of the Near East and Africa division of the department.

Frisch said he talked to McGhee last Friday in Washington because of reports that "Washington was demanding the admission of 250,000 Arab refugees into Israel plus the surrender of the southern Negev in exchange for the Gaza strip now held by the Egyptians."

Frisch said the Israeli government has committed itself to admit 100,000 Arabs.

Frisch's report of his conversation with McGhee was made in a formal statement issued at a joint meeting of the ZOA national administrative council and national executive committee.

He quoted McGhee as denying the State Department attempted to establish any figure for admission of Arab refugees.

McGhee, he said, told him the State Department thought it was up to Israel to "offer a figure."

McGhee's statement, he said, was "reassuring" and was "perfectly satisfactory" to the ZOA.

After the meeting Frisch said "I hope so" when asked if he considered McGhee's statement a clarification of American policy. He added:

"We want the State Department to feel that we take their assurances at face value because it is inconceivable to me that President Truman or the State Department would make demands, which, if enforced, would spell the very opposite of what the Israelis were trying to create. Taking in 250,000 Arabs or taking away part of the Negev would make Israel a state in name only.

Two Victories Claimed Over Chinese Reds

Canton, (Monday), Aug. 22 (AP)—The Nationalists reported today an important comeback against a Communist drive on Leiyang, a key point in the defense of Canton.

The Reds' attempt to sever the Canton-Hankow railway at Leiyang not only has been beaten back, the Nationalists asserted, but Anjen has been retaken. Anjen, 30 miles northeast of Leiyang, safeguards the eastern flank of government defense operations in Hunan Province.

Recapture of Anjen, the Nationalists said, was accomplished by a counterattack that pushed back one division of the Communist 45th army and wiped out two of its regiments.

Fifty miles northwest of Hengyang the Nationalists laid claim to another victory.

Gen. Pai Chung-hsi's Nationalist defense army was credited with total destruction of the Red 51st army of Gen. Lin Piao.

On the eastern flank, the Nationalists reported fierce fighting around Sinfeng, 180 miles northeast of Canton. They denied private reports that the Reds had captured Sinfeng.

On the far northwestern front in Kansu Province, travelers said the Reds were firing into the airfield three miles outside the walls of Lanchow, provincial capital.

They said Gen. Ma Pu-fang, Nationalist commander of the whole northwest region, had ordered abandonment of Lanchow.

Ching Again Asked to Go To Hawaii

United States Conciliation Service officials said yesterday Director Cyrus Ching will not decide before today what steps he may take in an effort to settle the 113-day-old Hawaii stevedore strike.

It was learned that Ching received a cablegram from Hawaiian officials yesterday. They urged him to come to Honolulu to take an active hand in mediation. He already had been asked by union and employer negotiators to do so.

Ching previously had indicated he would be unable to go. A spokesman told a reporter the appeal in the new cablegram had not yet been answered. Ching was not available for comment.

The strike under way since May 1, has seriously affected the islands' economy.

The strikers are demanding a 32-cent raise in their $1.40-an-hour wage.

Probers Hunt Motives for Freezer Gift

By the United Press

Senate "5-percenter" investigators yesterday searched the records of a Chicago perfume company for evidence of any "motive" behind its deep-freezer gifts to Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, President Truman's military aide.

Committee sources disclosed that the staff now has records of the Albert Verley Co., which made the first of the "gifts" in June, 1945, shortly before the famed trip to Paris of the mysterious John Maragon, Vaughan's "close friend," and two others in a military plane.

They said it appeared unlikely they would be able to have the company's president, David A. Bennett, appear in person because of his health.

Bennett's advertising man, Harry Hoffman of Milwaukee has denied the manufacturer personally asked, or directed Hoffman to ask, any White House favors in exchange for the freezers.

It was Maragon who paid a customs penalty on rare perfume essence, which had been labeled champagne for the White House, on his return from the two-week 1945 visit to Paris. The committee is trying to get Justice Department records of this to determine why there was no prosecution.

It also is awaiting Air Force records of the flight on an Air Transport Command plane. Maragon was accompanied on that trip by Emmett King, New York attorney, and Hoffman.

The committee intends to have Vaughan and Maragon on the witness stand this week if it can keep up a schedule of timing it has laid down. But, it was undetermined in which order they would appear. It would like to have Hunt, also, but he is bedridden and may not be able to testify.

Southerners End Strike Against Wisconsin Firm

Madison, Wis., Aug. 21 (AP).—Forty migratory workers from Georgia and the Carolinas ended their strike against the Mazo Food Products Co. early today, Voyta Wrabetz, chairman of the Wisconsin State Industrial Commission, announced.

Wrabetz said agreement was reached after 14 hours of negotiations and that the settlement would be ratified at a meeting this afternoon. He said details of the settlement would not be divulged until tomorrow.

The workers left their jobs at nearby Mazomanie Friday night, complaining of poor living conditions and inadequate wages at the Mazo firm's farm. State health authorities stated they had found apparent violations of health regulations at the camp and another investigation of the situation, by Federal officials, disclosed that no violations of civil rights or peonage laws existed.

1150-Year Wait Might Win WARL Quiz, Report Says

NYHT News Service

The Federal Communications Commission, now seeking to ban all giveaway radio programs, had before it yesterday a mathematical estimate that in one such program a listener might have to wait 1150 years to win.

The estimate is contained in an examiner's report of August 5, 1948—the day the commission initiated proceedings which culminated last week in its attempt to ban all such shows as illegal lotteries—on a metropolitan Washington show entitled "Dollars for Answers," broadcast by WARL, Northern Virginia Broadcasters, Inc., in suburban Arlington, Va. The station subsequently abandoned the show, a telephone quiz program.

"A theoretical estimate of 9000 calls per year and 270,000 Washington telephone subscribers indicates that everyone might be called within 30 years," the examiner reported, "except for the element of chance selection which would result in some multiple and some omitted calls. The probabilities might interest the mathematically inclined.

"For example, if the experience-indicated rate of WARL winner production should be maintained at 128 per 200 days, then all of the assumed Washington telephone subscribers might expect to become winners in slightly more than 1150 years, except, of course, for the uncontrollable caprice of chance and the inevitable fate of mortals."

The examiner's report, which received little notice at the time, came to light forcefully again last night as Representative Richard B. Wigglesworth (R., Mass.) charged that the FCC, in its new order, had exceeded its authority, was engaged in "another attempt to censor radio" and expressed the hope that the industry would "stoutly resist" it.

"I hold no brief for or against giveaway shows as worthwhile programs," Wigglesworth said, "but I do protest this effort by the FCC to decide whether these programs shall or shall not be broadcast.

VFW to Hear Truman Today

Miami, Fla., Aug. 21 (U.P.)—Veterans rolled into Miami tonight for the golden jubilee convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

President Truman topped the list of military and civilian leaders scheduled to address the convention. The President will make a quick flying trip to Miami Monday, arriving at 10:35 EST and returning to Washington immediately after an 11:30 address.

Despite the presence of Mr. Truman, there was a possibility the convention's most memorable feature might be a hurricane. The Weather Bureau announced today that the first big storm of the season had been located 850 miles east-southeast of Miami. It was aimed roughly at the convention city although it was not certain to arrive.

Convention officials said advance registration indicated an attendance of about 50,000.

The convention opens formally tonight with a memorial service for deceased veterans of all faiths.

Monday's opening business events include a forum on the Atlantic Pact with representatives of nine pact countries, including Gen. Lucius B. Clay, former military governor in Germany, speaking for the United States.

Clyde A. Lewis, senior vice commander from Plattsburg, N. Y., was expected to step into the commandership held by Lyall T. Beggs, Madison, Wis.

Leading contenders for junior vice commander were Sheldon F. Debaun, Asbury Park, N. J.; James N. Hardin, Greenville, Tenn.; Frank Hilton, Wyomissing, Pa.; James F. Raynolds, Everett, Mass., and Merton B. Tice, Mitchell, S. Dak.

The list of delegates to the VFW's fiftieth meeting included veterans of the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Campaign, World Wars I and II.

U. S., Ireland Sign Free Visa Pact

Dublin, Aug. 21 (AP).—A free visa agreement between the Irish government and the United States was announced today. The agreement was effective August 1.

Under the arrangement, United States citizens with valid passports may enter Ireland without visas. This, it was explained, could increase Ireland's dollar earnings from tourists.

In turn, effective September 1, the United States will grant free visas to Irish citizens, other than emigrants.

Taft-Hartley Law Operation 2 Years Old

By the United Press

The second year of operation of the Taft-Hartley Labor Management Act ended last night with Federal officials agreed that the Government is deeper into the regulation of internal labor union affairs, and industrial relations than ever before in peacetime.

The National Labor Relations Board capped the second year of operation Saturday night with its first order issued over a union's objection requiring the labor organization to pay a worker back wages for an illegal lay-off under an unfair union shop.

The board has administered the major portion of the Taft-Hartley Law since it became effective August 22, 1947.

The law was passed on June 28, 1947 over President Truman's veto.

Some monetary settlements have been made voluntarily by the unions under the pact. Some unions have been sued successfully for damages, and others fined for violation of the law.

But the Saturday night decision held for the first time that a union is jointly and severally responsible with an employer for back wages for an illegal discharge under an unfair union shop.

Mr. Truman, a large bloc of Congressmen and the labor organizations are committed to total repeal of the law. But their efforts failed in both houses of Congress this year.

British Union Group Denies Wage Demand

By Jack Tait

London, Aug. 21 (NYHT).—The executive of the Trades Union Congress, which represents eight million British workers, tonight announced its refusal it give way before increasing demands from about five million trade unionists for immediate wage increases.

The general council of the TUC in its annual report published tonight made it plain it remains solidly behind the Labor government's wage-freeze policy and is prepared to give battle on this issue at the eighty-first TUC conference, September 5, at Bridlington, Yorkshire.

"We have no doubt whatsoever," the report said, "that perseverance in the effort to improve the efficiency of our industries, to increase productivity, and so to lower production costs and, in the meantime, to restrain the increase of personal incomes is the only possible policy for the unions to pursue. It has enabled us so far to maintain living standards, to insure fair shares for all, and to keep up the volume of full employment."

Dockers End Strike

Buenos Aires, Aug. 21 (AP).—Stevedores in the Port of Buenos Aires went back to work this morning, ending a three-day strike called in an effort to enforce a demand for higher wages. The dock workers had asked the companies to increase their daily wages from the present 23 pesos ($4.60) to 30 pesos ($6).

Small Business Representatives To Be Investigated

By the United Press

Congress will open an investigation today to find out whether organizations claiming to represent small business actually serve small or big business.

Chairman Patman (D., Tex.) of the House Small Business Committee said "we wish to know how these organizations get started and whether they represent small business, as they claim, or big business, or, maybe nobody but the promoters."

The committee scheduled as its first witness members of the firm of Scott Anschuler, Chicago and Washington organization counselors.

School Aid Parley Viewed as Delay

By The Associated Press

The National Education Association yesterday suggested to Representative Lesinski that his round table on aid to education is just a scheme to keep Congress from passing it this session.

The Michigan Democrat has invited educational, religious and labor leaders to sit down today and privately talk over the explosive subject which stalled in a bitter religous row in the House. NEA said it was accepting Lesinski's invitation with misgivings "regarding the purposes of this conference."

A letter from R. B. Marston, its director of legislative-Federal relations," told Lesinski that a 953-page volume had been printed of the ideas of all the organizations he has invited and "it is hard to see what further viewpoints could be stated."

Besides being a "threat" to progress of the legislation, Marston wrote:

"This extraordinary move will inevitably be interpreted as a delaying tactic . . ."

Lesinski has said his move is an attempt to reach a satisfactory understanding. He is chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee which has before it education aid measures.

The big argument centered over whether Roman Catholic schools share in Federal aid through special services such as transportation, textbooks, health and the like. The main idea of the legislation is helping poor States raise their education level.

47 Former Congressmen Get Pensions

By the United Press

A check showed yesterday that 47 former Senators and Representatives each are drawing an average of $3131 a year each under the congressional pension system, but their identities are hidden by civil service regulations.

Although the pension system is only three years old the Government already is paying out $147,187 a year to former Congressmen who either have retired voluntarily or who were defeated for reelection in last year's campaign. Their pensions range from $592 a year to $7040.

The only congressional pensioner whose identity definitely is known is former Representative Andrew J. May (D., Ky.), who was convicted in 1947 of accepting bribes after a congressional investigation of the war contracts of Henry and Murray Garrson. The 73-year-old May, who now is free on bail pending an appeal, began collecting a monthly pension of $278 on February 1, 1947.

John Talbot, assistant chief of the commission's retirement division, said the secrecy surrounding the pension system is not unique. He said the same rules prohibit giving out information about the pension status of any Federal employe.

Drink's Role In War Told

was demoted to his permanent rank of lieutenant colonel and sent back to the U. S. from London after reportedly stating at a cocktail party in Britain in April, 1944, that the invasion of Europe would take place before June 13.—Editor's note.)

As to Pearl Harbor, the temperance leader said, "It is common knowledge that there was widespread drunkenness there the night of December 6, 1941."

He quoted Christopher J. Benny as telling a House committee that "liquor was everywhere" and that "the streets were jammed by soldiers and sailors staggering from one bar to another."

Heath said some sources reported about 55 per cent of the 841 places licensed to sell liquor were operated by persons of Japanese ancestry.

Heath asserted the Germans "used alcohol as a means to undermine French resistance." He quoted a 1941 Vichy dispatch as saying that "alcohol was the chief cause of the moral collapse of the French army."

Heath said Britain has used the liquor industry as a "buffer to ward off inflation" by maintaining production at prewar levels despite a general cutback in other industries.

"Britain's drink bill," he said, "has thus risen from $1,400,000,000 in 1938 to $3,200,000,000 in 1949."

Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, WCTU president, urged a thorough investigation of the report that Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan interceded for distillers to have grain rationing regulations relaxed.

"With millions of people starving in the world," Mrs. Colvin said, "the Department of Agriculture (which Vaughan was said to have contacted) has consistently 'coddled' the booze makers since the war, by seeing to it that they got grain when the starving world did not get enough."

13 Insane Convicts Escape, 12 Recaptured

Milledgeville, Ga., Aug. 21 (U.P.). Thirteen criminally insane convicts staged a mass break from the Georgia State Mental Hospital today, but 12 were captured within 12 hours.

The desperate men, three of them accused murderers, had been recently transferred to a newly-built maximum security ward here from the state prison because they had become "stir crazy" with long confinement. The men escaped by soaping themselves and slipping past several bars.

Cities Hit by Unemployment To Get U. S. Housing Priority

By the United Press

Top priority for awards under the Government's new low-rent housing program will be given to cities hardest hit by unemployment, Federal Housing Administrator Raymond M. Foley announced yesterday.

He urged such cities to act speedily to complete their applications and meet other requirements for Federal aid in public housing construction under the new long-range housing law.

Applications from cities with high unemployment will be given "special attention" and pushed in every way possible, he said. The law authorizes construction of 810,000 home units throughout the Nation.

Foley's announcement was in keeping with President Truman's instructions to all Federal agencies to channel Government purchasing and construction spending into areas which have severe "pools" of joblessness.

The housing administrator pointed out that the slum clearance program authorized by the housing law "cannot offer much immediate relief to unemployment" since it requires extensive planning.

New 'Magic Brain' Is Mental Wizard

Philadelphia, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—A new "mechanical brain" made its debut today.

The inventor predicted an electronic age in which machines not only solve problems too complex for men, but actually figure out military strategy, compose music and even play chess.

The new automatic computer, called "BINAC," is smaller, cheaper and "brighter" than its big brother, ENIAC, the world's first all-electronic calculating machine introduced before World War II.

BINAC calculates 12,000 times faster than a human being and does problems 25 per cent more complicated than ENIAC.

Problems that would keep a man with an adding machine busy for several years, BINAC knocks off in five minutes or so. It can rattle off 3500 additions or subtractions a second. Multiplication and division take a bit more time. The machine can do about 1000 a second.

Inventors Dr. John W. Mauchly and J. Presper Eckhert, jr., said BINAC was built to order for the Northrop Aircraft, Inc., Hawthorne, Calif., to solve complicated engineering problems.

A larger, general purpose type of "magic brain" called UNIVAC will be ready in a couple of months, the inventors said.

One of UNIVAC's first customers will be the United States Census Bureau for the 1950 census, Eckert said.

BINAC is only 5 feet high, 4 feet long and a foot wide. The secret lies in the mercury "memory" invented by Eckert.

BINAC has 1400 vacuum tubes. It has duplicate arithmetic channels so it can check itself for errors.

BINAC costs about $250,000.

Italy's Press Tartly Demands Erasure of Defiant Bandit

Rome, Aug. 21 (AP).—The Italian press jumped on Italy's government today with sharp and sarcastic demands that it wipe out the Sicilian bandit king, Salvatore Giuliano.

His gang has killed more than 80 policemen in Sicily's hills since he turned from wartime black marketing.

One paper suggested that 1000 police assigned to hunt Guiliano were themselves being chased by the audacibus chieftin.

Another commented that Italian police seemed more preoccupied with chasing scantily-clad women off public beaches.

The outburst was set off by the ambush killing of seven policemen Friday night.

It brought Interior Minister Mario Scelba, head of Italian security forces, hurrying back to Rome from vacation, to direct an intensified manhunt.

22 Officers Face Quiz in Cohen 'Plant'

Los Angeles, Aug. 21 (U.P.)—Twenty-two police officers today faced questioning in a district attorney's all-out investigation to fix responsibility for placing a secret microphone in the home of mobster Mickey Cohen, branded as "Public Enemy No. 1."

Police have been criticized for keeping secret their two-year eavesdropping.

Dist. Atty. William E. Simpson, Monday will begin questioning, under oath, the 22 police officers whose names were given him by Police Chief William A. Worton as having information about planting the secret microphone, which operated in 1947 and 1948 until Cohen tore it out.

The district attorney was interested in learning why his office had not been informed of what the police learned at Cohen's Brentwood mansion.

Mayor Fletcher Bowron, branding Cohen as "Los Angeles Public Enemy No. 1," warned "Cohen must be driven out of Los Angeles." The mayor promised that "No guilty individual police officer will escape this investigation of local vice."

Polio Not Serious As People Think, Doctor Declares

Chicago, Aug. 21 (AP).—A doctor said today that "polio is not such a terribly serious disease as most people think."

The statement was made by Dr. Harry Leichenger, chief of the contagious disease department, Cook County Hospital.

After a conference with other county medical experts on treatment problems of 29 polio victims currently under care at the hospital, Dr. Leichenger told reporters:

"More than 50 per cent of polio patients recover completely and do not suffer any residual paralysis or permanent crippling.

"Another 25 per cent will recover completely after a period of proper medical treatment."

Up to Saturday morning, Cook County had 251 polio cases this year, 165 of them in Chicago. These figures were approximately double those for the same period of 1948. Twelve persons have died of polio this year in Cook County, half of them in Chicago.

Moderate Rise Seen for Jobs In Printing Trade

Printing trade jobs will continue to increase in the next few years but at a "much more moderate and irregular" rate, the Veterans Administration said yesterday.

The prediction was based on a study prepared by the Labor Department bureau of labor statistics for VA use in advising disabled veterans on employment.

The report said there are "persistently rising demands" for printed products, "increasing availability" of machinery and supplies, and "unusually large numbers" of retirements and deaths among printing trade workers.

Recreation Pact

It is logical to assume that the recreation facilities agreement approved last week by the Recreation Board will also be okayed by the Interior Department. It was jointly drawn up, and Mr. Irving Root, Interior's representative on the Recreation Board, voted for it. Except for the swimming pools, where the racial issue is particularly acute, this lays the foundation for putting all recreation facilities in the District where they belong—under local control and supervision.

Actually, the transfer in individual instances will have to await negotiation of separate understanding on the assumption of financial obligations, staffing and taking over plant. These are not issues of great controversy. It should be possible, except where facilities are under concession, to reach such agreements without much difficulty or delay. Where concessionaires have an interest, the matter becomes more involved, but GSI, which is a principal concessionaire, is said to be cooperatively inclined, even though it has a five-year contract. The Leoffler concession covering the golf course is quite a different matter, since the contract rights still have not been straightened out.

It is, we think, a sign of good sense in Government that the Recreation Board and Interior Department, which have been almost at blows over the segregation issue, could come up with an accommodation so laudable. It should have happened long ago, of course. And for the sake of geographical consistency the swimming pools ought to be covered, too, under an arrangement for progressive elimination of racial barriers.

Ban On Giveaways

Instead of challenging the authority of the FCC to ban radio and television giveaway programs, responsible broadcasting companies ought to welcome this ruling as a salutary policing measure that will protect them from the competitive pressure of a debasing form of entertainment appealing to the cupidity and gambling instincts of mass humanity. If the broadcasting industry is to continue as a form of private enterprise, it must provide the kind of instruction and entertainment that justifies belief in the superiority of the American system of private ownership and control of broadcasting facilities. Otherwise an aroused public will eventually demand increasingly drastic regulatory action and possibly Government supersession of private companies.

The steady deterioration of broadcasting programs in recent years resulting from the vogue for the giveaways has disgusted millions of Americans. But the hope of getting something for nothing, or next to nothing, has an irresistible lure for other millions who tuné in on these programs in the hope of a telephone call that will tell them they have won hundreds or thousands of dollars in cash or assorted merchandise. As a result, the programs that rely on their strictly entertainment or informative value are losing listeners and in some cases have been pushed off the air.

The FCC order is directed primarily against the type of program that gives away prizes to stay-at-homes or makes receipt of prizes dependent on possession of the sponsors' products or evidence that the winner has listened to current or previous broadcasts. Apparently programs that limit gifts to studio audiences will not be affected, although some of them pay big money to successful contestants selected by chance. The only difference—an important one, to be sure, from the viewpoint of its effect on competing programs—is that the invisible audience is not bribed to listen to the studio gift programs in the hope of an award. The FCC, even with its limitations, will, therefore, if sustained, force the broadcasting companies to drop most of the meretricious programs that offer fortunes to the chosen few who can identify a tune or answer a random question.

We regret the fact that the FCC order was approved by only three members of the commission, three others being absent and one dissenting. The question that the courts will have to consider, however, is whether the FCC had the authority to prohibit the giveaway programs under the antilottery law. The section of the criminal code on which the FCC relied prohibits the broadcasting of information, not only about lotteries but also about any "gift enterprise or similar scheme, offering prizes dependent in whole or in part upon lot or chance, or any list of the prizes drawn or awarded by means of any such lottery, gift enterprise or scheme." Violators are punishable by fine or imprisonment or both and each day's broadcasting constitutes a separate offense.

It seems to us that the FCC has ample authority under this sweeping prohibition for its recent action. We hope that the courts will sustain its ruling; for it is aimed at abuses that must be checked in the public interest. Broadcasting companies that fight this ruling because it will deprive them of revenue would be well advised to consider whether they do not stand to lose a great deal more in the future if they attempt to perpetuate programs whose chief attraction is the broadcasting of money instead of real entertainment. By banning this kind of programmed games of chance the FCC is not interfering with freedom of speech but simply trying to prevent the broadcasting companies from abusing the privileges accorded them as licensed users of the airways.

Conquest Of Arthritis?

The news that the adrenal hormone called cortisone has been synthesized from the seeds of an African plant known to botanists as strophantus sarmentosus is being greeted as one of the great pharmacological discoveries of the age, and has been the occasion of much excitement among medical research workers. A series of experiments lately conducted at the famous Mayo Clinic indicates that cortisone is specific for rheumatoid arthritis, in about the same sense that insulin is specific for diabetes. At any rate, the patients upon whom the clinical tests were made were almost immediately relieved of their symptoms. Some of them, painfully crippled for years, found themselves able to walk and even to run. But, as in the case of insulin and the diabetics, the symptoms return when the doses are withheld. Cortisone is also said to have been used with some success in the treatment of certain other diseases, notably rheumatic fever.

The difficulty, however, has been that this hormone compound could not be made generally available. The source of it was oxen and a considerable herd of them is required to keep one patient supplied for a single day. But if strophantus sarmentosus can be cultivated in extensive quantities, the gates of life may presently be opened to rheumatoid arthritics everywhere. There are said to be more than seven million of them in the United States alone, a large proportion of whom are permanently or periodically bedridden.

The probability, however, is that it will be many years before they can hope for deliverance. It is not yet known whether the sarmentosus plant will grow in any but tropical climates, nor what difficulties may attend the cultivation of it. Evidently a tremendous quantity of the seeds is necessary to the production of a very small quantity of cortisone. Sarmentosus cultivation is likely to be for a time a profitable industry. Yet it will be attended with some risk, for there is no telling when means may be found of extracting it from other and commoner plants. The most promising regions for the industry appear to be Equatorial Africa, to which the sarmentosus plant is native; the East Indies, the Philippines and the tropical regions of Central and South America. Doubtless a considerable capital will be necessary, since the plants are said to require several years to mature.

Just how cortisone clears up the symptoms of rheumatoid arthritis is apparently not yet known. Nor is it known what effects the continued absorption of cortisone may have in the long run upon the bodily systems of the patients. Certain disturbing symptoms have been noted among some of the patients treated, but it is believed that these effects can be avoided or controlled, as in the case of insulin, by a systematic regulation of the dosages.

Even more tremendous than the therapeutic possibilities opened by the discovery are its implications for further research. Some enthusiasts, indeed, believe that the study of the action of cortisone on experimental animals may lead to new biochemical concepts of disease comparable in consequence to those of the bacteriological concepts which followed the discoveries of Lister and Pasteur. As to that, of course, we cannot say.

Balkan Showdown

For the last 10 days or so the Kremlin and Marshal Tito's government have been hurling threats and diplomatic insults at each other in language that would have horrified the traditional Billingsgate fishwife or an old-fashioned Dublin marketwoman. And now the Kremlin has openly called, almost in so many words, for a revolutionary uprising in Yugoslavia, and the overthrow of its dictator. The Moscow press has labeled Tito with the dirtiest epithets in its unsqueamish vocabulary; it has called him a Fascist and a lackey of the Anglo-American imperialists. The Kremlin has accused him of getting ready to bolt over to the west European bloc. On his side, Tito has accused the Russians of having sold out Yugoslavia interests in the impending peace treaty with Austria.

Even 10 years ago no two governments would have used such language toward each other until after they had reached the stage of open war. It is not indeed impossible that another Balkan war is imminent, for Tito has on his borders four of the Cominform states—Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria on the east, and Albania on the southwest—and is said to have disposed his army in readiness for an attack from any or all of these directions. However, the governments of these countries are having their internal difficulties, and a successful invasion of Yugoslavia would probably require the assistance of the Red army.

The call for an anti-Titoist rising in Yugoslavia, however, suggests that the Kremlin is either unable or unwilling to employ the Red army at this time for such a purpose. It is probable that the Kremlin has been striving to bring about some such coup ever since Tito's public defiance of the Cominform. And considering the elaborate and ingenious preparations made for the assassination of Leon Trotsky, when he was no longer an active political danger, it would be surprising if some similar effort had not been made in the case of the more formidable Tito. But the Russian accusations concerning the arrest and torture of Soviet citizens—doubtless not without foundation—suggest that Tito can count upon the loyalty of his secret police. Thus the revolutionary putsch demanded by Moscow must come from the army, if it is to come at all. The next few days probably will tell us how well Tito has succeeded in purging his army of pro-Cominform elements.

Caribbean Ferment

Judging from the Dominican Republic's complaint to the Inter-American Peace Commission, the Caribbean is nothing but an armed camp these days. Details of the Dominican protest have not been disclosed, but on the surface the charge that "virtual war" exists in this tempestuous area seems to be considerably exaggerated. It is perhaps significant that the Dominican Republic, under the thumb of the most absolute of all the Latin-American dictators, has figured one way or another in most of the recent clamor about breaches of the peace. Prior to the present case Haiti accused the Dominican Republic of aggression, and before that the Dominicans accused Cuba of harboring an invasionary force.

Undeniably there does exist a substantial number of persons who would like to overthrow the Trujillo government, by force or otherwise. Probably most of the Dominican ire is directed against the so-called Caribbean Legion, elements of which have been reported in Guatemala, Venezuela and Cuba. At one time the Legion may have contained enough members to constitute an actual threat, but recently it seems to have dwindled. If the attempted "invasion" of the Dominican Republic, supposedly from Guatemala, is any indication, the Legion has become nothing but an ineffectual band of freebooters.

If there is an actual threat to the Dominican Republic, the Peace Commission should be competent to deal with it in the same fashion as it has resolved previous disputes. But if the danger is an imaginary one, Trujillo will not strengthen his position by crying "wolf." The fact that the Dominican government has been giving considerable attention to a new arms plant does not help Trujillo's case, and the storm in the Caribbean ought to be an added reason for the United States to think twice about any contemplated arming of Latin America under the military aid program.

Liable For Back Pay

For the first time the National Labor Relations Board has held a union liable for payment of back wages to a worker whom it wrongfully caused to be thrown out of his job. Without having a valid union shop agreement, the Teamsters Union struck a Mount Vernon (N. Y.) truck operator and forced him to lay off one of his drivers, Ernest Fritz, jr., because of his failure to pay his union dues. It appears to have been a clear violation of the rights of workmen as established under the Taft-Hartley Act, and the justice of holding the union liable for reimbursement of the victim does not seem open to question.

The curious fact about the NLRB's ruling is its failure to make this obligation on the part of the union clear and unmistakable. The board found both the employer and the union responsible for the discrimination against the discharged driver and left the obligation to make good the loss dangling uncertainly between them. The employer was held jointly responsible because he yielded to the demands of the strikers. "An employer is not relieved of responsibility for his discrimination," the board wrote, "because economic necessity or the exigencies of the moment make expedient a violation of the act." No doubt that is good law, but it seems to us that the board should at least have recognized the source of the damage inflicted in ordering the reimbursement. Instead, it made the union and the employer jointly liable and did not apportion the amount between them. In other words, the board has handed the employer and union a new source of controversy. Surely it ought to have decided for itself where the chief responsibility lay and to have assessed the back pay accordingly.

NO SHORE

The winds that bore the tired ship north
And north and south and east and west
Carry it south once more,
It sails, but finds no shore.

It finds no cliffs, no trees, no beach,
Nor any sign of men;
And north it goes, and south it goes,
And east and west again.

One ship of all the ships that sailed
Remains upon the sea—
One straggler left to loneliness,
Forgotten and gone free.

Far out of port, away from call,
With business of its own,
It had no need of news, and so
These tiding went unknown:

How men, unmastered by themselves,
Grew mercilessly proud,
And ran so mad with war and hate
That dumb things cried aloud;

The trees rebelled, the grass withdrew,
The mountains fell in thunder;
Waves crept inexorably in,
And land and men slipped under.

Gold Prices And Aid

On August 17, your syndicated alarmist, Stewart Alsop, reported a plan to resolve the British crisis which can charitably be described as shady. The key element in this program is to raise the U. S. Treasury gold-buying price from $35 to $45 an ounce. The bait held out to the unsophisticated is: "This would automatically, and without touching a hair on an American taxpayer's head, raise the value of the huge gold hoard by about eight billion dollars."

Obviously, the 8 billion dollar appreciation of the Fort Knox white elephant is mere bookkeeping and of no conceivable national advantage. On a more fundamental level, no economic wizard has yet devised a means by which we can give goods and services away and, at the same time, keep them. We pay through taxation, inflation or compensatory credit curtailments via sterilization.

It would be better for us and for the world at large if we printed X-billion dollars of crisp new bills and handed them out to distressed foreign democracies in accordance with their needs. Given statutory changes, formal debt acknowledgments by the recipients could be considered as gold equivalents in terms of our monetary reserve. The domestic impact would be no different, but the efficacy of our aid to foreign friends would be greatly enhanced.

At a time when foreign productive efficiency is woefully lagging, the proposed gold deal will throw capital resources into the useless business of hauling the metal nobody wants from the earth's subsurface.

We are asked to give an automatic subsidy to gold-producing nations. We are then supposed to sit back and pray that the dollar exchange will seep through to the places where it is needed and where we could have put it directly in the first place.

Do we really want to shower gifts on South Africa? Can we be assured that the Soviet Union, a great gold producer, will not contrive to get dollars by this scheme? Is it true that the British would benefit indirectly through ownership over Dominion mines and through the present practice of buying Rand gold with sterling and selling it for dollars?

Finally, this plan ties our hands. It does not permit us to aid foreign friends in proportion to their needs and our national policies. Are we not intelligent enough as a people to have necessary, though painful, measures put before us directly, honestly and clearly? W.

Cerebral Palsy Club

I hope to get in touch with persons 16 and over in the Washington area who have cerebral palsy or spastic paralysis. My hope is that a club may be started for adult "CP's."

This condition is caused by an injury to that part of the brain controlling muscular action. It can happen before, after, or during birth. Sometimes the injury is so slight that the person may lead a normal life. More often all action, including speech, is affected. Seldom has the mind itself been damaged. The majority are educable, and doctors, lawyers, writers, and other professions are found among our ranks. Social contact and a proper understanding of their condition are the two major problems of the adult cerebral palsied. A club started and run by CP's themselves brings new vistas of self-confidence and achievement.

If you are a C.P. we want and need you in this club. Others who want to help us get started may also get in touch with me at 3800 Florence dr., Alexandria, or telephone KIng 8-8973.

Visitor's Plaint

Ever since I was a child, first learning about the existence of Washington, the capital of our country, I hoped to visit there sometime. Fifty-one years passed since then before my hope was realized.

Now I am disillusioned. For one thing, seeing the Negro section just a few blocks from the Capitol, the supposed source of freedom and liberty, and more recently acquired title of arsenal of the universe, was worth a laugh. The real farce is the Lincoln Memorial, where a Negro attendant stands in the shadow of his emanicipator for 8 or 10 hours, and then goes "home," to the black ghetto, over which the spirit of that saintly man must still weep.

Then I went to Arlington, a place more sacred than any memorial can ever be. I walked across from our car and came up not more than five steps when I remembered that I forgot to take my camera, which I had put on the floor of the car before me. I returned immediately and the camera was gone.

The fact that I shall never again own a camera is one thing. But the fact that some beautiful shots of the Lincoln Memorial is gone hurts me very much. Nice, isn't it?

Music Center

We must glumly agree with the statement in Miss Gertrude Sterns' letter of August 4 that Washington is still only an overgrown small town. But in regard to Serge Koussevitzky's proposals for a large scale art center we can't agree with her pessimistic viewpoint.

Washington has such inadequate musical educational facilities that the music student is without impetus or encouragement. As students at the Peabody Conservatory we are especially aware of Washington's vapid musical interest.

Fifteen years ago we find only five major orchestras in our country. Today, through years of rapid growth America boasts over 30 symphonic groups. This American renaissance of music proves the possibility of further decentralization. Since there is only one major opera company in the United States there are many top-ranking artists who would be very interested in a new venture.

Under a more experienced director, such as the internationally known Serge Koussevitzky, the National Symphony could compete successfully with the visiting major orchestras. The National Symphony has made very few recordings; it has not been asked to perform in the major music centers and it rarely fills the concert hall here. Why? Many of its activities are laudable such as its children's concerts.

If Washington could become a true cosmopolitan center the businessman by the increase in commerce would be compensated for contributing to the financial needs of a music center. The opera goer could enjoy his opera here, the small town visitors with the tremendous attraction of an art center would be more apt to prolong and repeat his visits.

"Julian The Apostate"

I hope you will let me inform your readers that the articles by me which you have published are an abridged version of articles originally published in another paper, and that in cutting the last article you (no doubt inadvertently) made it present an unbalanced and distorted picture.

You retained two references to my feelings of guilt and remorse for having betrayed my former friend Harold, but deleted all references to the similar feelings I experienced about having betrayed a trust more than 10 years earlier when I was in the State Department. This lack of balance must tend to create a false and unfavorable impression.

You deleted all reference to my second statement to the FBI, supplementing and correcting my first. That must also create a bad impression. You deleted the passage in which I made it clear that my choice not to cooperate with the House Committee on Un-American Activities was based on considerations of principle and conscience. There are, of course, many other deletions. I have mentioned only those that tend to misrepresent my position.

Pressure of urgent work prevented me from writing last week to correct two misstatements about myself in your issue of August 7. One of them was in your editorial entitled "Julian the Apostate."

"Not until . . . he learned of Mr. Chambers' defection . . . did it occur to Mr. Wadleigh that . . . he wasn't cut out . . . for . . . conspiracy. He was . . . too trustful of others."

That is pure fiction. Chambers' defection suspended my contacts with the Communists, but I expected to resume them. It was the Nazi-Soviet pact that made me change my mind. Those qualities of an intellectual to which you referred in your editorial were as much responsible for my turning my back on the Communists after the pact as they were for my collaboration with them earlier. This is made clear in my articles and it was made clear in my testimony at the Hiss trial.

The other misstatement was in the editorial note appended to the letter in which I took exception to some of London's statements about me. You said that I "approved" London's article about me in advance of its publication. It is true that I gave assent to a compromise draft, after an angry dispute with London. I was thankful that it was not as atrocious as his first draft. But the published article was not the same as the compromise draft. Among other differences, the published article included a considerable amount of new material, including the material to which I took exception in my letter.

JULIAN WADLEIGH.

Vienna, Va.

Editor's Note: The articles written by Mr. Wadleigh were syndicated by the New York Post. No secret has been made of this fact, and a credit line has been carried on each. As with most copy, it was necessary to condense Mr. Wadleigh's articles for reasons of space, but care was taken not to alter the meaning with respect to the separate story by Reporter John London, the only significant change from the draft shown Mr. Wadleigh was the addition of a one sentence quotation from his interview with Mr. London.

The reference in the editorial to Mr. Wadleigh's trustfulness was based on his own words: "If I weren't so naive, so instinctively trustful of other people, I'd have suspected that something was wrong."

Matter of Fact

By Stewart Alsop

Asia—Summing Up: I

THE ODD SENSE of unreality which most travelers experience on their return from abroad is curiously heightened in one who has returned to Washington from the Far East. For it is perfectly clear that, if southeast Asia is allowed to go the way of China, an unthinkable war is virtually inevitable. And it is perfectly clear that southeast Asia will go the way of China—and very soon—unless a major effort is made to reverse the process which is now under way.

Yet—and this causes the sense of unreality—there is no atmosphere of urgency at all in Washington. There is a good deal of talk. There is a good deal of worrying. A good many policy papers are being written. But nothing very much is being done, and nobody seems to contemplate doing anything very much for a long time to come.

If nothing is done, the sequence of events, as forecast by the most experienced observers in the Far East (and as undoubtedly forecast by V. M. Molotov, now directing the Soviet power drive in Asia) is broadly as follows: The Chinese Communist armies will reach the borders of Indo-China and Burma while the non-Communist government in Burma and the non-Communist Bao Dai regime in Indo-China are both still pathetically feeble. The promised "material support" will be delivered to the Communist forces in these countries, and Burma and Indo-China will rapidly be transformed into "new democracies."

WHEN BURMA and Indo-China go, Siam will follow—on this point everyone (including the Siamese) is unanimous. The long, irregular Siamese-Malayan border will then become an avenue of infiltration and supply for the Communist guerillas in Malaya, and the British position in Malaya will be rendered untenable. The rest of southeast Asia gone, the pressure on the harried, new-born Nationalist government in Indonesia will be too great to withstand.

All this is not some sort of unpleasant nightmare about small, faraway countries with peculiar names. It is what is now extremely likely to happen. It is likely to begin to happen, not in the distant future, but in a matter of months, before this year is out.

This is not merely the opinion of this reporter. It is the opinion of every single informed observer on the spot. It is necessary to consider what it will mean to the United States if southeast Asia, together with China, is organized under the authority of the Kremlin. In the first place, it will mean either that Japan's vital industrial potential will be added to the Kremlin's vast Asiatic empire, or that, to prevent this happening, the United States will be forced to transform Japan into a tightly held military colony.

With the inexorable need to feed her people, with her export market in the United States destroyed, it is nonsense to imagine that a non-Communist Japan could hold out against Communist pressure when her whole natural trading area had been organized under Communist control. The United States could, and probably would, attempt to hold Japan permanently by military means. But ultimately this could only be done, if it could be done at all, by brutally repressive measures.

IN THE SECOND PLACE, southeast Asia is incomparably the richest remaining reservoir of untapped resources in the world. Leave aside for the moment the strategic meaning of a Communist southeast Asia. Consider only the economic meaning: If these riches are added to the Soviet power center, and subtracted from the West, the kind of overturn in the world power balance will have occurred which in the past has always resulted in war.

It is difficult to write about what is happening in the Far East without sounding shrill and hysterical. And it must be said at once that the sequence of events outlined above, although it is now quite clearly likely to happen, need not necessarily happen.

To balance the picture, it is necessary to add the assets which the West still commands in Asia. Some of these are. non-Communist governments in Japan, Korea, the Philippines, Siam, Burma, Indonesia, and above all India; the economic weakness of Communist China; the great potentialities for a sharply improved standard of living throughout southeast Asia; the weakness and division of most of the native Communist movements; the unpopularity in southeast Asia of the Chinese; minorities who have clearly been designated Molotov's political shock troops; and perhaps above all, Asiatic nationalism. The Soviets have exploited this nationalism against the West, but it is a two-edged sword which can also be turned against Soviet imperialism.

Forthcoming reports in this space will outline the views of the best-informed observers and officials on the spot as to what can be done to exploit these assets and to prevent the disaster which has already occurred in China from becoming the final catastrophe of the loss of all Asia. But the essential ingredient of every plan of action in Asia can be stated in one sentence. It is the sense of urgency in the United States which is required if the effort to save Asia is to be made. For the effort must be great, and it must be made very soon.

Price Support Cost

By Mark Sullivan

No Change In Prospect

IN THE current discussion in Congress about price support for farm crops, no proposal looks toward ending the practice. Only an occasional individual suggests that. What is likely to emerge is continuation of the law essentially as it is, with not very material changes in some details, such as limited flexibility in fixing the prices at which some crops shall be supported. Price support is going to continue with us as a national problem. The nature of the problem is illustrated by some present conditions that have arisen under it.

The Department of Agriculture owns some 70 million pounds of dried eggs (acquired through the Commodity Credit Corp.). The department does not want the eggs. It did not buy them because it wanted them or had use for them. It bought them for the purpose of keeping up the price of shell eggs in the open market. That is the purpose of the price support law, the authority under which the department buys many farm crops.

The eggs on hand are an embarrassment to the department. Twenty million pounds are left over from purchases made last year. About 50 million pounds have been bought this year, and they are still being bought. To get rid of some of them, the department last month offered 16 million pounds for sale abroad at prices of 65 and 67 cents a pound. This represents an immense loss. The price the department paid for them, reckoned on the basis of the support price for shell eggs in the open market, was $1.25-$1.28 a pound.

HERE arises one of many questions the American consumer is likely to ask. Why should the department sell its eggs abroad, why not sell them here at home and give American consumers of eggs a break? The answer is that the price support law forbids it. The law provides, as to the many crops the department buys, that it must not make any sale for edible consumption anywhere in the United States at a price lower than the department paid. The reason is obvious, once you accept the principle of price support. The purpose is to keep prices up. If the department, having bought a crop at its support price, later sold at a lower price, the purpose of the law would of course be defeated. The American consumer will just have to think that over.

For supporting many crops, the department practices direct purchase, as in the case of eggs. Of butter, the department has bought this year some 10 million pounds, at prices which it fixed some months ago at 59 cents a pound wholesale and recently raised to 62 cents. The purchases continue on a large scale. Last year the department bought one potato out of every three raised in the country. When sold at give-away prices for nonedible purposes, they represented a loss to the Government of some 225 million dollars.

In addition to direct purchases of many crops, the department practices as to many other crops, a method which in many cases amounts to much the same. It is called "nonrecourse loans." The department makes loans to farmers at price support figures it fixes. The farmer need not repay the loan unless he chooses, and of course will not so choose unless the price in the open market goes higher than what the department loaned him. The method is illustrated by a recent department announcement about cottonseed. The department will make loans at $49.50 a ton until December 31, and will take over the cottonseed next April 30 if the borrower has not repaid by that time.

THE QUANTITIES of various crops which the department has thus taken over have been huge, and the cost of the Government correspondingly so. The department has on its hands crops to a value of more than two billion dollars. Out of last year's corn crops the department made "nonrecourse loans" on some half a billion bushels, at support figures fixed by the department at about $1.45 a bushel.

The total cost on all crops is likely to increase, because the present year's crops are enormous, and prices in the open market would normally be lower than the figures at which the department makes loans. Immense quantities are likely to be dumped on the Government. The "nonrecourse loan" method of price support is practiced with many crops, including corn, wheat, and other grains.

For all this, the people pay twice. As taxpayers they pay the amounts which the department pays to farmers or otherwise expends for supporting prices. Then, as consumers, the people pay for food the prices which Government support brings about. The excess cost to the consumer is the difference between what he had to pay, and what he could have bought his food for had there not been price support. The excess for the aggregate of all foods is prodigious. Even strong advocates of price support, in the Administration and in Congress, have come to feel apprehension about whether consumers will continue to endure this burden, whether the system may break down.

Johnson Taking Steps to Save Up to 3 Million Dollars a Day

By the United Press

Chairman Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) of the Senate Armed Services Committee, revealed yesterday that Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson is taking steps to save up to three million dollars a day in the military establishment.

He said Johnson hopes to achieve the economies under new powers granted to him in the tightened unification law which provides for stronger central control over military spending.

In a radio broadcast over WBAL, Baltimore, Tydings said: "In talking to Mr. Johnson, I have been impressed with his determination to effect economies on many fronts. I am advised that in the very near future he will begin to unfold a program which will save at least a million dollars a day and has possibilities of saving up to three million dollars a day in the cost of our defense establishment."

Tydings pointed out that this raised the prospect of cutting from 350 million dollars to one billion dollars from Federal spending in the current 1950 fiscal year and reducing the size of the expected Government deficit.

Aiken Assails Brannan Farm Price Plan

Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) asserted yesterday that the farm price support plan backed by Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan would plunge the Nation into a depression.

He attacked the plan in a radio interview with Commentator Charles Parmer as the Senate Agriculture Committee prepared to begin public hearings today on new farm legislation.

The House already has rejected the Brannan proposal for direct Government subsidies to farmers in favor of a one-year extension of the present law under which about 18 major crops are supported at a full 90 per cent of parity through crop loans and Government purchases.

Chairman Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) of the Senate Agriculture Committee, served notice again yesterday he will fight to get his committee to go along with the House. But a bipartisan group in the committee is backing a compromise by Senator Clinton P. Anderson (D., N. H.) former Secretary of Agriculture.

This compromise would retain some features of the present law, plus some of the provisions for flexible price supports contained in the farm law written by Aiken and passed by the GOP-steered Eightieth Congress. The Aiken plan is scheduled to go into effect next January.

The House bill would repeal the Aiken law, under which some price supports would rise in scarce years and go down in surplus years.

Aiken said there seems to be no chance that Congress will accept Brannan's plan this year, but that it presumably will be an issue in the congressional elections next year.

Forest Fires In West Rage Out of Control

By The Associated Press

Fires raced out of control through more than 8000 acres of rich timberland in Wyoming's Yellowstone National Park and Idaho's Payette National Forest Sunday night.

More than 1300 men, including daring parachute "smoke jumpers" were on the fire lines and more were arriving hourly. Three firefighters were injured, one burned critically.

Three major blazes, each roaring through 2000 acres of rugged terrain, were reported in Payette Forest and four serious fires were raging in famed Yellowstone Park.

Firefighters said that lightning had set a torch to the forestland.

Forest service officials described the fire situation in Payette Forest as "very grave" and warned that "the worst is yet to come."

The biggest single fire was in Hell's Canyon, along the Snake River, where flames licked through more than 2000 acres.

In Yellowstone Park more than 200 men battled to subdue the flames.

In Boise National Forest, firefighters were battling 14 small fires and the fire control officer there warned that "weather conditions have created a very critical fire potential."

All-Germany Domination Held Red Aim

Berlin, Aug. 21 (AP).—A special report by the U. S. Military Government for Berlin said today the Russians' current air of friendliness here is a pose to mask the real goal of the Kremlin—Communist domination of all Germany.

The report was submitted to Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor and to U. S. Military Gov. John J. McCloy.

The authors consider the Russians have put aside the "cold war" as an instrument of policy in Berlin only for the moment.

The headquarters division listed as its major problem: "Constant political and economic conflict with the Soviet military administration, whose objective is communistic control of Berlin and eventual political and economic control of Germany."

This conclusion was dated August 11—long after the Russian blockade was lifted and long after Russia, the United States, Britain and France were supposed to be establishing a "live and let live" philosophy here.

The four commanders have failed in frequent meetings to reach a single major agreement on normalizing life in the split city. The West has made proposals which hang in the air and the Russians answered them only by submitting some of their own.

Tito Screams 'Double-cross'

slav Government, the note declared, Russia promised Austrian Chancellor Karl Renner to work for preservation of Austria's present boundaries while at the same time encouraging Yugoslavia to press her claims with the United States, Britain and France.

Russia had accused the Yugoslav government itself of quietly abandoning its claims while attempting to make its people think Russia was responsible for the failure to win a slice of territory.

The four-power Foreign Ministers Council at Paris last spring agreed to retain present frontiers in the Austrian treaty of independence, not yet completed.

In her note of August 11 Russia charged Tito was conspiring to join the Western power bloc. Yugoslavia said this assertion was intended to "conceal precisely the contrary"—that Russia was working against the interests of Yugoslavia in the matter of the Austrian treaty.

Today's note was the sixth in an increasingly bitter exchange which seemed to foreshadow some showdown, diplomatic or otherwise.

Beginning with the denunciation of Tito by the Cominform over a year ago, as a nationalistic wanderer from the true Communist line, the feud has now advanced to where Russia and the Moscow-trained Premier of Yugoslavia are calling each other enemies.

The Yugoslav public did not know as yet of last night's Moscow note.

Reliable sources said the new Russian note took the Yugoslavs by surprise.

It came at a moment when mass meetings of Yugoslav troops and frontier guards were being held throughout the country. At these meetings, Yugoslav fighting men are being told:

"The Yugoslav frontiers will be protected against anyone" who hinders the building of socialism here.

All Belgrade newspapers published the text of the Yugoslav note on Austria and followed it with the text of the Russian note of August 11.

"The enemy attitude of the Soviet government is known from a series of Soviet government acts toward Yugoslavia," the new Yugoslav note said.

"That attitude is merely the consequence of the policy which the Soviet government presently conducts and which is not only against the interests of socialistic Yugoslavia, but is damaging to the entire anti-imperialistic world democratic front.

"Concerning the tone in which the Soviet note of August 11 is written, as well as the insults and slanders contained in that note and in previous correspondence addressed to the government of Yugoslavia, all that is another proof of the topsy-turvy conception of the Soviet government concerning relations which should exist between the Soviet Union and other socialistic countries.

"However, the Yugoslav government passes over it, as it has done on many previous occasions up to now and leaves it to democratic opinion to judge about such a tone and such similar insulting acts toward one independent and democratic country."

tions in Washington is shallow. It has been rejected by every competent observer of the tragic record of betrayal of China running back years."

The Senators said that if it is the United States policy to "contain communism the world over," then there can be no justification for the State Department ignoring China's plight, and "discounting the relative importance of the entire Far East."

They said the United States "wisely adopts" a military assistance program for Europe, and joins a North Atlantic Pact, but added:

"That does not justify neglecting China and the Far East, nor brushing off the crisis there with a long apologia for State Department errors."

Government In Chile Claims Reds Put Down

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 21 (AP).—The government claimed "complete control" throughout Chile today and breaking of what it termed an attempted Communist revolutionary action based on a general strike.

President Gabriel Gonzales Videla's regime disclosed that a nation-wide roundup of Communist agitators was underway. Officials said ringleaders would be dispersed to remote parts of the country. That means exile.

Yesterday the government ordered a state of emergency—a form of martial law—throughout the nation, and sent troops and 11 warships to occupy and guard coal, copper and nitrate mines in the north and south.

The action was taken after four days of disorders in Santiago over an increase in bus fares, which resulted in three deaths and injury to about 300 persons.

Lucas Ready To Stay On

Senate today to place his resolution, which has the signed backing of 63, or two-thirds, of the 96 members of the chamber, in a position to force a vote on it as a rider to the armed services appropriation bill when it reaches the floor for action.

This resolution would authorize and direct President Truman to cut 5 to 10 per cent from the overall total of appropriations passed by Congress this year and is vigorously opposed by the administration. Senator Lucas has firmly resisted demands that he agree to bring it to a vote separately before adjournment, so, Senator McClellan said, he will give notice under the Senate rules today that he intends to offer it as a rider to the biggest and most difficult to veto of the pending appropriation bills.

In the same broadcast, an interview with Ed Hart, of WWDC, Senator McClellan insisted that the President shares responsibility with Congress for economizing on Government expenditures.

"If the President, having the present Bureau of the Budget as his agency, will not share in the responsibility for reducing the cost of Government," Senator McClellan said, "then we have no alternative except to either take over the present existing Bureau of the Budget or create a similar agency, at an additional expense to the taxpayers, to serve the Congress. But I maintain there is joint responsibility on the President and the Congress will cooperate in the best interest of the taxpayers, expenditures can be reduced without the necessity of creating another agency."

Senator Lucas included in the list of legislation on which he expects action before adjournment, in addition to the appropriation measures, the bills to revive the reciprocal trade agreements program, to raise the minimum wage from 40 to 75 cents an hour, to increase executive and military pay and to provide an improved program for farm income supports.

"I also predict," he said, "that the Congress eventually will approve a bill for Federal aid to education which will be satisfactory to Americans of all faiths."

No Financial Talk Bypass, Wherry Warns

Senator Wherry of Nebraska, Senate minority floor leader, told the Administration yesterday not to try any "new attempts" to bypass Congress in the coming British-Canadian-American financial talks.

He said in a statement that Congress will have the final say on any agreements reached. A proposal that would weaken the American economy and lower our standard of living "will certainly be rejected" by the lawmakers, he predicted.

U. S. Laborer Found Better Off Than Red

Paris, Aug. 21 (U.P.)—A Russian laborer must work 25 times longer than an American worker to earn the same amount of bread, a survey published here by the Economic Cooperation Administration said today.

The survey was made by delegations of the Norwegian National Trade Union Congress which visited both the United States and the Soviet Union last year.

It said a Soviet worker must work half a day or longer to earn enough money to buy a kilogram (2.2 pounds) of rye bread, while an American needed to work only nine to 12 minutes to buy the same amount.

The survey also said an American had to work only three days to purchase a wool suit, while a Russian had to spend two months' wages for a suit made of only 50 per cent wool.

The Russian worked five days to buy 2.2 pounds of beef, while an American worked only an hour and 12 minutes, the survey said.

The Norwegians called the American worker "the best paid in the world" and said his purchasing power places him "in a class by himself."

It found American unions strongly independent, politically and economically.

The survey said Soviet wages were based on the "principle of individual job rates . . . The system of premiums has been carried very far and results in great differences in wages.

"In a factory where the average wage is 800 rubles per month, one may find monthly averages of 2,000 to 3,000 rubles, and even up to 10,000 and 14,000 rubles," the Norwegians said.

The delegation to Russia found the country had made "impressive" progress in recovery from war damage.

Speaking of the Russians they met, the Norwegians said, "We have no doubt that they are first and foremost interested in a peaceful restoration and that they have a firm belief that in a few years they will overcome all difficulties unless a war breaks out."

They admitted their contacts with U. S. S. R. citizens was limited.

U. S. Insists It Won't Drop Thomas Case

By the United Press

Justice Department officials yesterday said they are "very definitely" planning to go ahead this fall with the long-delayed prosecution of Representative J. Parnell Thomas (R., N. J.).

The former chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities now is scheduled to go on trial here next November 7, exactly a year after he was indicted by a Federal grand jury on charges of conspiring to defraud the Government by padding his congressional office payroll.

The trial originally was scheduled for last March 7. But it was postponed after Thomas entered Walter Reed Hospital February 26 with an acute stomach ailment.

A spokesman for the hospital yesterday said Thomas has not been a patient since August 4. He refused to give out any information on the Congressman's condition, explaining that Thomas had asked that all queries about his health be referred to his office.

Mrs. Vera Lewis, his secretary, said he is "still convalescing at his home" in Allendale, N. J.

Columnist Drew Pearson, who first published charges Thomas was receiving salary "kickbacks" from persons listed as office employes, recently said a group of Republican Congressmen is seeking to persuade the Administration to drop the case.

Quacks Reap Gold Harvest In Atom Panacea Peddling

By the United Press

The average citizen's belief that atomic energy can work miracles in medicine has led to a new gold harvest for quack panacea peddlers, officials of the U. S. Food and Drug Administration disclosed yesterday.

FDA inspectors, trying to protect the public from "magic cures" that are either useless or downright dangerous, have been kept busy by a boom in weirdly-named medicines and fantastic-looking gadgets which deceive the gullible by borrowing some of the wonder-words from the new vocabulary of nuclear fission.

They have seized, for example, articles branded as radioactive bath salts, U-235 drinking water, an atomic shin-plaster, and a device about the size and value of a baby rattle. This device sold briskly at $50 each on the claim that it emitted "Z-rays" which would lengthen life by "expanding the hydrogen atoms" of the body.

Why do people pay good money for such things? FDA officials believe it's the old story of too little learning being a dangerous thing.

Almost everyone has read about the amazing results which medical science has achieved, and expects to achieve, with the radioisotopes produced in the atomic furnace at Oak Ridge, Tenn. They have been deeply impressed by the enthusiasm which reputable scientists have displayed over the potentialities of these tagged atoms in the study and treatment of cancer and a host of other afflictions.

But unfortunately, officials say, too many people seem not to realize that this truly sensational new weapon against disease can be entrusted to only the most highly-qualified doctors, hospitals and research institutions. Wrongly used, ralioactivity is not a healer, but a killer.

That is why FDA inspectors are genuinely relieved when they find that a quack "atomic" cure is merely worthless.

While many of the panaceas which claim to relieve pain by invisible radiation are simply fraudulent, there have been a few cases in which the FDA has found to its horror that a preparation, sold without a doctor's prescription and taken without supervision, really was dangerously radioactive.

These preparations, it is emphasized, are not licensed by or procured from the United States Atomic Energy Commission. The commission strictly supervises the distribution and use of all radioactive materials produced in its plants, and the Oak Ridge radioisotopes go only to top-notch medical and research institutions.

Long before the atomic age dawned, in the early 1930s, a wealthy Pittsburgh steel manufacturer died a lingering and horrible death, and in the attendant publicity it was learned that he had consumed hundreds of bottles of radioactive water in the belief that it would prolong life and vigor.

Since the victim was widely known and the manner of his death unusually pitiful (his entire jaw disintegrated), the case had repercussions in Congress and a new law was passed strengthening FDA's seizure powers.

An official explained that the FDA follows a simple policy in dealing with the spate of "atomic cures" which have come out since Hiroshima.

"We are instantly suspicious of any product which claims to be radioactive and which can be purchased and used without medical direction," the official said. "If it's the real McCoy, it's dangerous. And if it isn't dangerous, it's probably misbranded."

The FDA's advice to all persons who hope that the marvelous by-products of the atomic bomb can restore their health is even simpler:

"See your doctor about it."

Jackie's Own Story

Being an Athlete Gets Robinson Out of a Jam

by JACKIE ROBINSON
As Told to ED REID

I DIDN'T really think that the excited Pasadena cop would pull the trigger, but I had no way of knowing he wouldn't. If that sounds sort of confused, pardon me, but I don't have too clear a recollection of what happened that day.

I do remember, though, that pretty soon we were in the Pasadena police station and the charges against me were: blocking the street, resisting arrest and suspicion of robbery. Imagine that!

I remember one of my friends who was not in my car, a fellow named Woodrow Cunningham, came over to the cop and tried to explain that he was just excited, that there was nothing really wrong. But you can't explain anything to a man who thinks that no Negro is up to any good and that the best place for him to be is in jail.

Oh, I was put in jail all right. I spent the night there and I was not permitted to make any phone calls to my friends. They just wouldn't pay any attention when I called to them in the lighted room down at the end of the hall in the jail tier.

I got out of that trouble because I was an athlete. Not that I sawed the bars off my cell or scaled any walls. Nothing like that. You see I was about ready to go to U. C. L. A. They knew I was something of a football and baseball player and had made preparations to include me in their team plans for the coming year.

THE NEXT MORNING when I finally was able to get to a telephone I called John Thurman, baseball and football coach at Pasadena College. He said he would help me out.

When I showed up in court and pleaded not guilty I had to put up $25 bail to get out. A hearing was set after they tried first to get me to plead guilty to the charges. I said nothing doing, that I did not want it to go on my record.

However, at U. C. L. A. they advised me not to show up in court—they said they would take care of everything. They also said the newspapers would never print anything about the trouble and that if would be smoothed over. Well, I didn't show up in court and I was fined $50 in absentia; which the college paid. I got back my $25 bail and didn't the newspapers come out with a big blast and paint it up pretty though!

I want to say the school was mistaken about the publicity and the whole deal gave me a bad name at U. C. L. A. I remember there was a white man who saw the whole thing on the street that day and who offered to testify for me. Maybe I should have taken his advice.

This thing followed me all over and it was pretty hard to shake off.

When I look back now on my early life in Pasadena, I realize that we did get into a lot of devilment when we were young. You always realize those things later in life. I remember, too, that we were generally always hungry. When we felt like eating we would raid the nearest orchard.

I remember when the Pepper Street Gang, of which I was a member, was real hungry everyone would ask everyone else where he thought there was something to eat. Sometimes one of the fellows would have some extra food at his house and we would all go up there. This arrangement kept us from starving many a day.

One of the troubles, too, was that we had too much time on our hands. We had no supervised activity. There was no PAL in Pasadena.

I remember one of the men who helped us keep out of real trouble was Captain Morgan of the Pasadena police department. He was always ready to give us advice and maybe a dollar or two if he thought we hadn't had any breakfast that morning.

You wonder why teen-age kids get in trouble? Let me tell you this. No one is more ready for trouble than a teen-ager who is hungry. I think it's a more powerful gnawing than any grownup can have.

However, everything straightened out one way or the other, and I was all set to go to Pasadena College, preliminary to entering UCLA in the fall of 1938. I was 17 or 18 years old at the time. That summer I believe I really started my base running. It was at Brooks Park in Pasadena, which was operated by the city recreation department.

I WANT to straighten one thing out now. I went two years to Pasadena Junior College and amassed enough credits to start at UCLA as a junior student, so that although I spent only two years at UCLA, I left there as senior.

I recall that I was on every team in Pasadena Junior College. It was there that I lost most of the shyness that had always made my early life miserable.

At Pasadena I met a fellow named Jack Gordon. He was a trackman and since I could run like a deer and was interested in all track and field events our friendship really blossomed.

I remember he used to be a spokesman for me. He would go

Red Sox Now 2½ Back; Griffs Lose 11th in Row

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Bleep! Bloop! the Nats have completed their coup!

Rushing fearlessly toward eighth place for the last two months, but unable to make too much headway because the Browns were losing consistently too, the Nats finally made it yesterday.

The went out and got beat by the Boston Red Sox, 4-0, and this, their eleventh straight pasting, enabled them to replace St. Louis in the American League's cellar.

The victory put Boston only 2½ games behind league-leading New York who lost to Philadelphia 8-7.

Achieved before a gathering of 12.517 die-hards, Boston's victory was formulated on the effective use of eight hits and the seven-hit pitching of Jack Kramer, who twirled his second straight victory over the Nats.

Stephens Drives in Two

Vern Stephens knocked in two runs with three singles while Ted Williams scored with a triple and a single to help Kramer escort the Hose to their eleventh straight decision over the Nats.

Kramer, who is blossoming into one of Boston's most dependable pitchers after a ragged start, gave up three hits each to Eddie Yost and Jake Early and a single to Gil Coan, but that was all.

He walked none and permitted only two Nats to stray as far as third base.

Once again Sid Hudson hurled creditably, but once again he was bedeviled by lack of offensive and defensive support. Result, Hudson was trimmed for the 12th time this season.

Hudson pitched no-hit, no-run ball for three innings, but hit Al Zarilla to launch a two-run Boston rally in the fourth. Early also helped the Boston cause along when he allowed Hudson's first pitch to Williams elude him for a passed ball and there was Zarilla on second base without even swinging at a ball.

Ted Singles

Williams' single sent him to third and the first of Stephens' three hits scored him and also moved Williams to second.

After advancing to third on Bobby Doerr's sacrifice, Williams scored as Birdie Tebbetts dribbled a fielders' choice to Yost. Yost elected to try to try for Williams at the plate, but his throw hit the slugger in the back with Stephens going to third, where he remained, as Hudson finally retired the side.

With one away in the seventh, Merrill Combs singled and it promptly became Boston's third run as Sherry Robertson messed up a double play. Two plays later, Dom DiMaggio flied to right to send Combs across and make it 3-0.

Williams' triple against the right field wall and Stephens' single brought in the Hose's fourth run in the eighth.

Yost Doubles

With one away in the second, Yost parked a double in left field, but he remained on second. The Nats passed up an even better opportunity in the third when Early doubled to center, but he got only as far as third base.

Early again tried to get something started in the eighth when he led off with a single, but pinch-hitter Clyde Vollmer rolled into a double to get Kramer out of that little jam.

IN SHORT — The Nats have now lost 34 out of their last 38 games, the last 11 in a row to the pennant-contending Red Sox and Yankees. . . . Bill Goodman, Boston first baseman, suffered a recurrence of the foot ailment which sidelined him in Boston last week, and flew home for treatment . . . Eddie Robinson, the Nats' ailing first baseman, has been released from the hospital and will accompany the team to Cleveland tonight.

Fain Grand Slams

Philadelphia Turns Back Leaders, 8-7

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—The Philadelphia Athletics celebrated "Connie Mack Day" today by nipping the New York Yankees, 8-7.

Ferris Fain featured the triumph with a grand slam home run in the seventh inning. The setback cut the Yanks' American League lead over the second-place Boston Red Sox to two and one half games.

Fain drove in a total of six runs in the contest, witnessed by 64,323.

Joe Page, who took over for Vic Raschi in the sixth with the Yankees behind, 3 to 2, lost his fifth game against 11 triumphs.

The Yankees went to the front in the last half of that frame by scoring three runs when Sam Chapman lost Gus Niarhos' fly in the sun and it cleared the filled bases.

Fain's circuit clout in the seventh put the A's two runs in front.

A triple by Elmer Valo and Chapman's single scored what proved to be the winning run, as the Yankees counted wtice in the ninth to fall one short of a tie.

Cliff Mapes belted Brissie for his fourth homer and a single which batted in three runs for the losers.

Brissie gained his twelfth triumph and annexed his first victory over the Yankees.

Porterfield Sent Back to Newark

New York, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—The New York Yankees today announced that Pitcher Bob Porterfield has been returned to Newark of the International League because of a recurrence of his arm injury.

Porterfield, who suffered the injury in an exhibition game against the Dodgers last April, was brought up by the Yankees from Newark last week on the assumption that the ailment had been remedied.

Porterfield will be used as a spot pitcher by the Bears until he is once again ready to rejoin the Yankees.

Cards Split, Boost Lead as Bums Lose

Pittsburgh, Aug. 21 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals, heading into the home stretch, increased their National League lead to a game and a half today as they split a double-header with Pittsburgh's Pirates.

The Cards took the opener, 4-2, behind the five-hit pitching of former Mexican Leaguer Fred Martin but were shut out on two hits by Murry Dickson in the 8-0 nightcap.

Stan Musial, St. Louis outfielder who was presented a $4000 auto today by admirers from his home town of Donora, Pa., went hitless in both games.

An overflow crowd of 34,406 saw the Cards look like champions in the first game and something else again in the second. The split enabled the Cards to pick up a half game on the second-place Dodgers who lost to Boston 5-0.

Braves Do It To Dodgers Again, 5 to 0

Boston, Aug. 21 (AP).—The Boston Braves today blanked the Brooklyn Dodgers, 5-0, before a crowd of 20,723 who saw the Brooks lose further ground to the National League leading St. Louis Cardinals. It was the second successive time the Tribe has shut out the Dodgers, who lost 4-0 here last night.

Braves pitcher Bill Voiselle walked only one Brooklyn batter and only three of the Dodgers reached third as he won his sixth game of the season, four of them shutouts.

He has lost three. Three of his decisions have been over the Dodgers, whom he also whitewashed April 25.

The walk he issued today to Pee Wee Reese in the eighth was the first in 25 innings to a Brooklyn batter.

For big Don Newcombe, husky Negro pitcher, it was his sixth loss compared with 11 triumphs and he has yet to beat the Braves who now have defeated him twice.

Newcombe struck out four, running his year's total to 99.

Dickson, a former Cardinal, pitched superb ball in winning the nightcap. He didn't allow a hit until the fifth when Hemus singled. Slaughter's single in the seventh was the only other St. Louis safety.

He set the side down in order in seven of the nine innings to gain his sixth victory against 12 losses. Four of his six wins have been at the expense of his former teammates.

Third Baseman Pete Castiglione and Centerfielder Dino Restelli spaked the Pirate attack. Castiglione had a two-run homer and a double and Restelli hit a two-run home and a single.

The Pirates drove Harry Brecheen fro mthe mount with a four-run attack in the sixth.

Koniszewski's Career Periled

Los Angeles, Aug. 21. — The football career of Washington Redskin tackle John Koniszewski hangs in the balance because of a peculiar nerve disorder in the blond giant's right shoulder, Dr. Alejandro Castra said today.

All last season the former George Washington University star felt a strange twinge in his right shoulder whenever he was hit on the head. During recent practice sessions, the twinges became more intense.

Dr. Castro looked at Koniszewski's shoulder today and ordered the 6 foot, 3 inch, 250 pound Redskin mainstay to consult a specialist in Los Angeles tomorrow.

"It's almost certain that John will miss Friday's game with the Los Angeles Rams, and there is a strong possibility that he may never play another game," said Dr. Castro.

Koniszewski, a basketball as well as football star at G. W. U., has been with the Redskins for four years.—BILL BURNETT.

Giants Lose Opener, 4-0

Fans Toss Bottles, Phils Forfeit Game

Philadelphia, Aug. 21 (AP).—Angry fans, tossing pop bottles and paper, stopped action in the second game of a double-header between the New York Giants and the Philadelphia Phillies today and forced the umpires to give the Giants a 9-0 forfeit victory.

In the mild-by-comparison opener, the Phils extended their win streak to six straight by shutting out the Giants, 4-0, behind the five-hit pitching of Kenny Heintzelman.

The forfeit stunned the Phils.

Manager Eddie Sawyer called it a "stupid decision by the umpire." He added:

"But they're the boss on the field, so there's nothing we can do about it. We can't protest that decision to anybody."

It was the majors' first forfeit game since September 27, 1942, when the Giants were the victims in a game against the Braves at the Polo Grounds.

Umpire Al Barlick called the forfeit. He acted under a National League rule which says a game may be declared forfeited if the home club has not furnished police protection to clear the field within 15 minutes after the start of a rhubarb.

The forfeit came in the ninth inning of the nightcap. The Giants, leading 4-2, were at bat with one man out.

A long fly smashed by the Giants' Joe Lafata started the argument.

Phils' outfielder Richie Ashburn snared the ball near his shoe tops. He said he caught it. Barr ruled that Ashburn trapped the ball, catching it after it touched the ground.

Ashburn blew up. He charged in to argue. So did all his teammates and Manager Sawyer. The 19,000 fans in the Shibe Park stand let up a loud wail of protest. And the pop bottles began to fly at Barr, Lee Ballanfant and Barlick.

with me every place. Through him I met my first girl friend who was a friend of his girl. We would always double date. I don't think I had enough courage at that time to go on a date with a girl alone.

I was on the football, baseball and track teams at Pasadena, and Jack always was around to help smooth out the rough places. I think my coaches were very important in my development. They were Karl Metton, Tom Mallory and John Thurman—all fine men who had nothing but words of encouragement for me.

ONE of my specialties was the running broad jump. It is a wonderful event. You toe the line and sprint forward with all your strength. Then you jump—you really try to jump off the earth and your legs churn the air like you wanted to reach the moon. Then you come down to earth in soft sand and you have to remember to fall forward so that there are no marks behind the back of your heels.

I got so good at the running broad jump that in 1940 I won the national championship in AAU competition. I think I jumped a little over 25 feet. I have jumped as far as 25 feet 6½ inches.

I was all set to compete in the 1940 Olympics when we got the news that the games were canceled.

THAT brings me up to the war years, years which affected my life the same as most men who were called into the service. More than that, it brings me up to the time when I really came to depend on the advice my mother had given me.

She not only gave me advice, but she gave advice to all members of the old Pepper st. gang. I am proud to say that all these guys turned out nice. They've grown up and they're all good men now.

I remember these sessions with my mother, who is still alive and thriving in Pasadena, and I also remember talks with my grandmother, who was born a slave.

I remember sitting by the flickering light of an oil lantern in Glorietta st. and watching her face, which had a thousand wrinkles in it. I remember she told me once that when the slaves were freed they wanted no part of freedom. They were afraid of it. Can you imagine anyone born in the United States being afraid of freedom.

Sidwell and Bromwich Win National Doubles Title

Brough, DuPont Take Gals' Crown

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 21 (AP).—Jack Bromwich and Billy Sidwell, the Australian Davis Cup aces, needed only 50 minutes to win the National Doubles title from their countrymen, Frank Sedgman and George Worthington, 6—4, 6—0, 6—1, today at Longwood.

And they did it in such one-sided fashion that most of the impressed tennis students agreed that the defending American quartet, three of whom faltered here, are decided underdogs for the challenge round trophy competition that opens next Friday at Forest Hills, N. Y.

What bothered the United States team the most was the fact that Sedgman and Worthington, playing together in their first tourney, were able to upset defending champions Gardnar Mulloy and Billy Talbert, 6—4, 1—6, 7—5, 9—7, in their quarter-finals. Mulloy and Talbert have been named as the American team's doubles combination.

In the other of today's finals, Louise Brough of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Margaret Osborne Du Pont of Wilmington, Del., won their eighth straight women's doubles titles by besting Doris Hart of Miami and Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, 6—4, 8—6.

Mack's Big 'Day', He Pilots Stars

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

POP WENT THE BOTTLES—They were playing games (not parlor) in Philadelphia's Shibe Park yesterday. The fans revived "Spin the Bottle," trying to "kiss" an umpire or two. The umps came right back with "Forfeit" rendering a 9-0 verdict in favor of the Giants over the Phillies in the ninth inning. Pictured here is the evidence as park attendants haul away bottles (empty) and other debris hurled by spectators who didn't like a ruling against the Phils.

65,000 Cheer Connie, But His Old A's Lose

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—If he lives to be another 86, Connie Mack, baseball's lovable elder statesman, will never forget today.

The man "around who the American League was built" nearly 50 years ago, was given one of the greatest ovations of his life here at Yankee Stadium, where he was honored for his "long and meritorius service to baseball."

"It's the happiest day of my life," he said simply. "I want to thank the New York Yankee organization and the baseball fans of New York City for making this a great day for me."

"Connie Mack Day" was climaxed by an old timers game between an assemblage of all-time A's greats and a similar team of former Yankee stars.

Mack directed the ex-A's from the visitors' dugout and Ed Barrow, former Yankee general manager and president, piloted the ex-Yankees. The game went two innings, with the old Yankees coming out on top, 3-2.

Ferrier Takes Title With 263

Grand Rapids, Mich., Aug. 21 (AP). Big Jim Ferrier of San Francisco finally found his way into the winner's circle as he won the $15,000 Grand Rapids Open golf tournament today with a 72 hole total of 263.

Ferrier's terrific 263 set a new PGA tournament record for par 72 courses, as he broke the mark of 264 set by Craig Wood in 1940 in the Metropolitan Open in New York.

Ferrier, who had been runner-up in five tournaments this year, had to play some nifty golf on his final round to turn back the challenge of E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of St. Andrews, Ill.

Harrison fired a 64—eight under par—to match the mark set earlier in the day by Chick Harbert of Detroit for a new record on the Cascade Hills Country Club.

But Australian-born Ferrier proved equal to the challenge as he shot 65 winding up his day with a 65-foot putt for an eagle three on the eighteenth hole.

Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago turned in a three under par 69 for a 271 total and third place four strokes behind Harrison.

Ferrier's first tournament win of the year netted him $2,600 first prize money and ended his long months without a victory.

It boosted his earnings in PGA tournaments to $11,600 fo rthe year and his earnings in all tournament play in 1949 to $19,600.

Browns Split With Tigers, Quit Cellar

St. Louis, Aug. 21 (AP).—Paul Campbell's eighth-inning homer with two on and Don Kolloway's double scoring Aaron Robinson in the same inning gave the Detroit Tigers an 8-to-7 victory over the St. Louis Browns in the second game today after dropping the first contest of the double-header, 4 to 2.

The split just lifted the Browns out of the American League cellar.

11 Lettermen Among 72 Reporting

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 21 (AP).—Head Coach George Sauer expects to greet 72 candidates tomorrow as Navy opens varsity football practice.

Only 11 letter-winners will be on hand from last year's team, which lost eight straight games before playing Army a 21-21 standstill.

However, Sauer has what he considers a promising crop of newcomers up from last year's powerful Plebe outfit that piled up lopsided scores in rolling through an unbeaten season.

This year, as is usually the case, the Middies face a nine-game major schedule with nary a breather from stem to stern. Opening against Southern California, in Los Angeles September 24, the sailors will go on to face Princeton, Duke, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Notre Dame, Tulane and Columbia before closing out with Army at Philadelphia November 26.

Despite the shortage of experienced lettermen, Sauer feels his squad will have more balance and depth than it had last season. In spring practice sessions, the reserves exhibited almost equal ability with those Sauer figures to use as starters.

With the exception of center, Navy can field an all-veteran line. At the ends, Sauer has Capt. Phil Ryan and Harrison Frasier along with Ted Carson and Bill Wilson who earned their letters as subs last fall.

Bob Renneman and Jim Hunt will be back again to man the tackle slots while holdovers Walt Wanger and Charley Cooper were the number one guards during spring practice.

In the backfield, there are just three returnees headed by Billy Earl, a halfback for the past two years, who has been shifted to quarterback and is slated to handle the bulk of Sauer's T-formation, airminded offense.

The sophomores who made the best impression in spring practice were Mike Zastrow, 209-pound, 5-foot-11 quarterback from Algoma, Wisc.; Bob Allison, 180-pound fullback from Robinson, Ill., and Jim Bryson, a center from Rome, Ga.

Bogley, Thomas Win in Baltimore

Baltimore, Aug. 21 (AP).—The Middle Atlantic States junior tennis team failed for the second straight year to wrest the Corish Cup from the Eastern States here yesterday, but it wasn't the fault of two Washington, D. C., lads.

Score was 5—4, and Gil Bogley and Gerry Thomas of Washington accounted for two of the Middle Atlantic points. Bogley, national junior champ for the past two years, whipped fellow junior Davis Cupper Tom Boys, 6—1, 6—4.

Then Gil teamed with Thomas, who is his schoolmate at Princeton, and they trimmed Boys and Bill Long, 6—3, 6—3, 6—3.

One on the Aisle—

Jennifer Jones As Mme. Bovary

By Richard L. Coe

FINE CASTING and an excellent script make a persuasive picture of Flaubert's old novel, "Madame Bovary," at the Palace.

Jennifer Jones is particularly fine as Emma, bringing a depth of acting infrequently seen on the screen and a performance that far outweighs any of her previous ones.

As experience has shown, there are many dangers in attempting film versions of books which once gripped or "shocked" multitudes. The very success of the work, inspiring innumerable carbon copies, has taken off the nap, bringing through the years that change in attitude which is one of the characteristics of a great art. What may have been shocking can become maudlin and in new guise characters may become self-copscious.

By framing the story as Flaubert's defense of attacks against his book, Adapter Robert Ardrey has been able to direct the mind of his audience into an approximation of that which greeted Flaubert's book. And he also has been able to include thoughts and transitions which are not photographic. He has thought out this technique carefully so that the holes in such flashback treatment are neatly closed.

Emma grew up on a lonely farm, attended a convent school where she discovered, through books forbidden to her, the icing of romance so dear to the dreams of puzzled youth. The Cinderella yarns of 100 years ago were not much different from ours of today and Emma lapped up the visions of highlife, far-away places and handsome protectors.

So that when a doctor came to tend her ailing father she saw in him not the simple, honest character that he was, but the white knight of her dreams, a man to carry her away and show her the pleasures of the world.

Not unnaturally, for Emma's beauty was reflected in her love of beauty, the doctor falls in love with Emma. She rejoices in becoming his wife and looks forward to the life she's dreamed of. Reality brings her down to earth, but ignorance pushes her into the debt of a merchant.

19th Century Movie Fan

In every man she meets Emma sees the white knight of her romances. None is actually as she sees him and in a few years she has ruined her little family and destroyed herself. To the mutterings of France that this portrait is an insult to all Frenchwomen, Flaubert answers: "Whose fault is this story but your own?"

Nor does the irony that Flaubert's book had the same effect as many twentieth-century movies do escape the observant filmwatcher. For are the pictures Emma plasters on her farmhouse walls so different from the fan magazine stills which today bedeck the bureaus of teen-age daydreamers? How intentional this reflection is I don't know, but I certainly received it from Ardrey's shrewd script.

Miss Jones probes Emma's character so completely that there is little to be said of her work apart from its excellence. Her fellow players are all people of stature: Van Heflin, as the liberating doctor; Louis Jourdan, as the aristocrat who disappoints her; Christopher Kent, as the weakling lover; Frank Allenby as the creditor and Gladys Cooper as Kent's mother. James Mason plays Flaubert.

With Vincente Minnelli as director, Metro has lavished much detail on the picture, including a memoriable ballroom scene. Only the lush, vulgar and loud music of Miklos Rozsa mars a finished, interesting film of the long-lived novel.

"Madame Bovary." M-G-M release produced by Pando S. Berman. Screen play by Robert Ardrey from the novel by Gustave Flaubert. Photographed by Robert Planck. Music by Miklos Rozsa. Directed by Vincente Minelli. At the Palace.

Bergman Again Says It's Last Film

Farfa, Italy, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—Ingrid Bergman stepped down from in front of the cameras here early today and said, "That is the final shot I will ever act before a motion picture camera."

Italian Director Roberto Rossellini rose from a small wooden box alongside the camera and walked over to the star. He kissed her lightly on both cheeks and told her:

"It's all over, dear, and thank you."

Miss Bergman refused to comment on reports she would marry Rossellini when her divorce is final.

Memphis, Atlanta See Banned Film on TV

Newinton, N. H., Aug. 21 (AP).—"Lost Boundaries," a film on racial tolerance which was banned in Memphis, Tenn., and Atlanta, Ga., will be shown in those cities on television, the movie's producer said tonight.

Louis De Rochemont said he and his associates would buy time on television stations WMCT, Memphis, and WSB, Atlanta, to show the film "sometime during the latter part of the week."

11 in Race For Five Greenbelt City Posts

September 20 Vote Centers Around Community Sale By Government

Eleven candidates have filed for the five places on the Greenbelt City Council to be filled at the September 20 election, Mrs. Winfield McCamy, city clerk, yesterday reported.

Only 90 new voters have registered for the election, Mrs. McCamy said, an indication that the race will not be too exciting.

No issues have been raised as yet other than the one concerning sale of Greenbelt by the Federal Government, on which all of the candidates are united. They all feel that the present residents should have first chance to purchase the property.

19 in 1947

In the 1947 election there were 19 candidates divided into two slates and nine independent candidates. The campaign was a sizzling one. Much of the steam was engendered by the question of retaining Town Manager James Gobbel, who later resigned.

Jerry Klutiz is on vacation. His column, The Federal Diary, will be resumed Tuesday.

The present City Manager is Charles T. McDonald. He has been able to maintain the city government on an even keel and gets along well with all of the groups, council members say.

Two of the five incumbents are not candidates. Councilman David Granahan announced several weeks ago that he would not be a candidate for reelection because he is moving out of the city to University Park in a few months. Councilman Allen D. Morrison, who had been expected to file for reelection, announced that he would not be a candidate because he has been named justice of the peace for the city.

5 Seats at Stake

Incumbents who have filed for reelection are Mayor Thomas J. Canning, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Harrington and Frank J. Lastner.

Other candidates who have filed are Steve L. Comings, Adelbert C. Long, Bruce Bowman, Walter J. Bierwagen, James N. Wolfe, T. George Davidsen, Mrs. Margaret Carmody and Mike Salzman.

The voters will elect all five members of the council. The five elected will choose one among them, usually the one with the highest number of votes, to be mayor.

Schoolgirl, 15, New 'Queen' At Greenbelt

Norma Kerns, 15-year-old sophomore at Greenbelt High School, last night was crowned "Miss Greenbelt Water Follies of 1949" at the climax of the annual water pageant at the Greenbelt pool.

Miss Kerns' entry in the contest was sponsored by Greenbelt Youth Center. She is the daughter of Mrs. Gladys L. Kerns, 6-Q Hillside rd., Greenbelt.

City Manager Charles T. McDonald presented her with a silver loving cup. Mayor Thomas J. Canning placed the crown on her head.

The pageant, directed by Miss Ora Donoghue and Mrs. Peter Labukas, both of Greenbelt, presented a series of deck and water spectacles with popular songs as their themes.

Maryland Park Sets Registration Dates

New students at Maryland Park High School at Seat Pleasant, Md., register between 10 a. m. and 3 p. m. Wednesday and Thursday.

Mrs. Helen H. Brashears, principal, said the newcomers should bring credentials showing their previous school work. A later registration will take place September 1, when other newcomers and regular students wishing to change prospective programs should report.

Hayfever Time Hits District With Lost Weekend Sneeze

RAGWEED

Hayfever time took over Washington in full force over the weekend, hardly noticed by anyone except—er—a-a-achoo!

One week ago, there was hardly a trace of the pesky ragweed pollen recorded on the District Medical Society's sneezemeters. Yesterday, however, the mechanism was soaring like a soprano clarinet cadenza.

The pollen exposure device detected the presence of 53 grains of pollen per cubic yard of air for the 24 hours ending yesterday at 9 a. m. This showed a dip from Saturday's high of 74 grains, but the slump was reported as "purely momentary."

The first steady indication of pollen presence came Wednesday when four grains were discovered. This jumped the next day to seven, and back to four on Friday morning, and then to Saturday's high.

Hope Expressed

Dr. Eloise W. Kailin, Washington representative for the National Pollen Survey Committee and spokeswoman for the District Medical Society, in revealing the ragweed data, said she had hopes for a "lighter season of suffering."

Dr. Kailin, whose husband is also numbered among the estimated 30,000 hay fever victims in the Washington area, said the recent dry summer should indicate a small crop of ragweed plant. She pointed out, however, that nature had a strange way of expressing itself.

"If you starve a plant long enough prior to its blooming period, it may break out into a terrific bloom just to preserve its species," she said. "The real question is whether the 'withering' or the 'survival' will predominate."

Cynic by Nature

The ordinary hay fever victim is a cynic by nature. He knows that of all the diseases to which human flesh is heir, his enjoys a unique position. Although generally regarded as the most serious of nonfatal maladies, its symptoms, the sufferer finds, are usually the subject of much joking and hilarity.

Fits of sneezing, a copious discharge from the nose and eyes, stuffiness of the nose, intolerable itching of the lining membranes of the nose, eyes, mouth, throat and ear canals and occasional attacks of asthma show the irritating qualities of pollen grains upon the tissues.

The blooming period of the ragweed extends from the middle of this month until the advent of frost.

Those sufferers keeping check of inroads that science is making into the ragweed menace with the spraying of such solutions as 2, 4-D in the area won't exactly be cheered by the statistics.

In 1946 the first spray was used sparingly in the District. The high that year, on September 3, was 145 grains. The next year, when spraying became an active measure, the grain count climbed to a high of 192 grains on September 3. Last year a new high was recorded on August 29, when 262 grains were detected. Authorities say 10 grains is usually enough to start the average case. The question, however, is how high the count would have been without the spraying.

Last year high records were reported at two filed count stations. In Bethesda, Md., 1038 grains were measured on August 25. At National Airport 344 grains appeared on the August 31 count.

What can the hayfever victim do?

Experts recommend sleeping with the window closed at night until the first frost. They say when driving, the sufferer should keep his automobile window closed. He should also avoid all forms of nature, such as hikes, picnics and outings.

Perhaps the best non-medical relief can be found in air-conditioned atmospheres.

Some Get Reactions

Medical science has come to the aid of the victim with chemical compounds for injections. Around 18 varieties of antihistaminics are now in use. They give around 70 to 80 per cent relief. Unfortunately, though, some persons get reactions from the antihistaminics ranging from rash and dizziness to convulsions and in a few cases death.

Then there are hypo shots which build up the tolerance to the allergy. These are about 90 per cent effective, counteracting poison released in tissues damaged by the allergic reaction.

Up to now, however, only one sure cure has been found. That is the removal of the patient to a latitude or an altitude in which ragweed does not grow.

At Falls Church

Redhead, 4, Wins Title As 'Queen'

The Washington Post

LILLI KATE COCKERILLE

Lilli Kathleen Cockerille, a petite little redhead, 4 years old last night added the title of "Red-Haired Queen" of the Falls Church festival to her laurels.

Lilli won the throne from eight other carrot-topped pretenders ranging in age up to 28 years. Along with the crown, she won a $50 prize with which she hopes to pay for dancing lessons.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Cockerille of Route No. 1, Fairfax. Her father is an insurance underwriter.

Since 1947, 4-year-old Queen Red Hair has won honors in five contests—the Happy Hollow Playground contest, honorable mention in the National Children's Photo contest, Harris & Ewing's 1948 Child of the Year contest, the Blue Ribbon contest at the Virginia Theater contest last June.

The judging and coronation ceremony was the high point of the final day of the three-day festival held opposite Falls Church High School on Hillwood ave.

Runnerup in the Red-Haired Queen Contest was Katherine Mallett, 7, of Route 2, Fairfax. She received a radio. In third place was 28-year-old Gwen Monger, 2318 13th pl. ne., who won a $15 permanent wave.

Proceeds of the three-day festival will go for construction of a community park. Mrs. Edward C. Knouse, treasurer of the Falls Church Community Park, Inc., last night said the festival grossed about $2000 in the first two days.

Air Guard Starting Last Of Training

The D. C. Air National Guard and other Air Guard units comprising the Fifty-third Wing will go into their second and final week of field training today at New Castle Air Force Base, Del.

Today's schedule calls for the final phase of a four-day operational readiness test, which yesterday saw the 121st (White House) Fighter Squadron acting as an enemy unit.

In yesterday's test, 43 aircraft, including 10 fighters of the 121st, were airborne four minutes after the alert sounded to send them up.

The 121st "enemy" Squadron was intercepted by the 142d Squadron of the Delaware Guard and the 149th of the Richmond (Va.) Guard.

In the morning the same three squadrons made simulated attacks on enemy airfields and installations, using actual aerial, ground and rocket firing.

During the gunnery test Lieut. Col. Willard W. Millikan of Alexandria, Va., commander of the 121st, made an unofficial high gunnery score for the training period of 57 hits out of 100 on a towed sleeve target, firing .50-caliber machine guns from his F-47 Thunderbolt.

Following a day off on Tuesday, the Air Guard units will revert on Wednesday to regular field training. Thursday and Friday will be devoted to gunnery competition between four-man teams, one team to be drawn from each of the six fighter squadrons and one bomb group in the Fifty-third Wing.

Mt. Rainier Set To Enforce All Traffic Rules

Strict enforcement of the traffic rules in Mount Rainier will begin September 1, the Mount Rainier City Council announced last night.

Parking on the wrong side of the street will be prosecuted, as well as other traffic offenses, the city officials warned.

A foot patrol officer will visit Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth sts., Rhode Island ave., and Bunker Hill rd. each hour to enforce parking and other traffic rules as well as for general police work, the council directed.

Also the city police car will be used. A warning light is being installed on its top and the words, "Police Patrol Car," stenciled on its side.

5-Hour Fire Here Forces Coal Shift

Firefighters Move 200 Tons to Get At Blaze; Burning Shed Imperils Cars

More than 200 tons of soft coal were moved last night by District firemen before a five-hour-long blaze, which began at the bottom of the coal pile, could be extinguished.

Firemen reported that the fire began in the coal yard of the Consolidated Coal Co. at 1201 1st st. ne., at 7:30 p. m. They believe the coal became ignited by spontaneous combustion.

Three engine companies and a truck company worked at the smoldering heap. Efforts to drench the fire from the top of the coal pile failed and firemen were forced to move the coal to get to the burning area.

Earlier in the day firemen worked more than an hour to quell a stubborn blaze in a shed in the rear of a cluster of garages and gasoline stations at the intersection of 14th and M sts. se.

The fire, of undetermined origin, broke out at about 6:15 p. m. and quickly swept through the one-story structure used to store machine posts. When firemen of the No. 18 Engine Company arrived at the scene they said flames were shooting through the roof.

Garagemen hastily removed cars and trucks from the adjacent area fearing the fire would ignite their gasoline storage tanks but the blaze was confined to the one building. Extra policemen routed heavy Sunday traffic around the fire area. Firemen said damage to the structure could not be determined until today.

Skits to Tell Of Bike Rules In District

A group of Washington youngsters will begin a week-long campaign today to teach other District children the safety rules of bicycle riding on the city's streets.

Members of several District community playgrounds in the District will visit other playgrounds during the week as part of a "traveling theater" to present skits, songs and dances. The programs in each case will contain warnings and advice on the hazards and rules of "bike" riding.

The scheme for bicycle safety is under the direction of the District Recreation Department and the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Council. The theater programs are being directed by Betty Maggio.

Greeting British Teachers . . .

The Washington Post

HERE ON EXCHANGE—Miss Maureen Duxbury of Leeds, England, and Miss Margaret Sterry of Gloucestershire, are welcomed by Dr. Paul Douglass, president of American University. The English girls are in this country on a teachers' exchange

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

A group of 97 British exchange teachers saw the sights of Washington yesterday and afterward dropped some of their traditional national reserve to enthuse about the city.

The Britons, who have exchanged positions with American schoolteachers for a year, expressed their feelings about our city by enviously congratulating one of their number because she will be in this area.

While the others will be leaving Wednesday for positions all over the country, after a five-day visit here, Miss Catherine A. M. Gladdis will teach at Bradbury Heights Elementary School, Upper Marlboro, Md.

"Aren't you lucky?" she was told constantly yesterday at a reception for the visitors given by Dr. Paul Douglass, president of American University.

"Why, people I don't even know in the group have been saying that to me," she remarked. "That's because we love Washington particularly."

While most of the British teachers in the group are young, unmarried women, six are married men who have brought their families with them.

Miss Gladdis, who in England teaches at the Francis Avenue Junior Mixed School, Portsmouth, met her "exchange," Miss Frances Long, of the Bradbury Heights School, a week before she sailed from England.

Not having met her Bradbury Heights pupils, whose ages will range from 10 to 12, Miss Gladdis did not know whether they would be "little angels." But she said she was "pinning my faith on the fact that children are the same all over the world."

The curriculum she will teach will be largely the same as what she taught in England, she believes, except for history.

The tall, 31-year-old Briton, who has never been to the United States before, has traveled in Europe and served during the war in the Womens Auxiliary Air Force. Edinburgh and Rome were her favorite cities—until she saw Washington, she declared.

Senator Fulbright (D., Ark.), author of the act which provides partial grants for the exchange program, will address the group this morning at Hurst Hall, American University, one of two dormitories where the teachers are staying. Other officials also will speak.

Following a United States Office of Education program this afternoon and a banquet tonight, the group will be received by President Truman at the White House at 12:15 p. m. Tuesday.

A final orientation meeting will be held Wednesday. The teachers will leave for their assignments that evening.

Truck Driver Charged With Brick Thefts

A truck driver accused of stealing 28,500 bricks is slated for Municipal Court appearance today on charges of larceny after trust.

The driver, Jessie Lee Wright, 27, of 75 Seaton st. nw., hauled bricks on contract for the United Clay Products Co., here.

On 15 different occasions, according to Sergt. F. E. Dodson of the check and fraud squad, Wright hauled another load away and sold them to a Fairmont Heights, Md., man instead of carting the bricks, as directed, to the Roberts Construction Co., Cheverly, Md.

Each load contained 1900 bricks and the total value of the 15 loads was put at $1140, police reported.

Boy, 11, Dies In Rockville; Fell Friday

An 11-year-old boy, who fell two stories at the Rockville (Md.) home of his uncle Friday, died yesterday of injuries.

The boy, James Richardson of Harlan, Ky., had been visiting the uncle, Chief Petty Officer Leonard Lacy, at 406 Blandford ave., for about a week, according to Montgomery County police.

Witnesses told police the boy was climbing on the railing of the porch Friday just before he fell to the concrete paving below.

He was taken to Suburban Hospital by the Rockville Rescue Squad, where he was found to have a fractured skull and a fractured wrist. He did not recover consciousness before his death at 12:58 a. m. yesterday.

The body was removed to the Robert A. Pumphrey funeral home at Bethesda and later yesterday was sent to Harlan.

A certificate of accidental death was issued by Dr. F. J. Broschart, Montgomery County medical examiner.

The boy's father, Fred F. Richardson lives at Harlan, police said, and his mother, Mrs. Ruth Thomas, a nurse, at Louisville, Ky.

Press to Hear AMA Stand on Health Plan

The American Medical Association will launch here today a program to explain its stand on compulsory health insurance to the Nation's press.

Officials of the Association have invited Washington's publishers, editors, authors, columnists and correspondents to a luncheon at noon at the Statler.

Dr. Elmer L. Henderson of Louisville, Ky., president-elect of the association; Dr. John Cline of San Francisco, a member of the association's House of Delegates; and Dr. George F. Lull, the association's secretary and general manager, will be among association officials present.

"We are going to bring the truth about the American Medical Association's campaign against compulsory health insurance directly to the press," Dr. Lull said last week.

"We are inviting not only those who have expressed support of our point of view, but also those who are opposed to us. We hope to stimulate lively and candid discussion and no questions will be barred which relate to the issue or to AMA policies."

AMA officials will subsequently tour the Nation's major cities for similar round table sessions.

Woman Kills Self, Using Son's Pistol

Mrs. Margaret Anna Smith, 47, of 5537 Illinois ave. nw., fatally shot herself yesterday.

She was found at 12:15 p. m. by her son, William R. Smith, jr., 23, and his fiancee,, Thelma H. Mullenberg, 19, 822 Longfellow st. nw., on their return from church.

A note was found stating that Mrs. Smith had been grieving over the death of her husband, William R. Smith, sr., in April, and directing that funds in a bank account go to the son.

The gun Mrs. Smith used was owned by her son and kept in his room. Upon his return from church he discovered that it was missing. Almost simultaneously, Miss Mullenberg found a basement door open. The two then went to the basement and found the body, a bullet wound in the right temple.

Smith told police he had left for church at 10:30 a. m. and had seen her alive then.

He is a draftsman for the Army Engineers at Gravelly Point. He said his father, before his death, was employed in the same office. Smith told officers that his mother had been "worried and grieving" since his father's death.

Police Find Boat 2 GIs 'Salvaged'

A motorless outboard motorboat, reported missing since August 17, was recovered yesterday after police convinced two soldiers they could not claim "salvage" rights.

The 11-foot boat, property of W. H. Jett, 3916 5th st. nw., and James I. Flaherty, 613 Rock Creek Church rd. nw., was finally taken into custody by harbor police in the Pentagon Lagoon.

According to Capt. Otha Saunders, of the Harbor Police, who said the law of salvage is inoperative in such inland waters as the Potomac, the two soldiers rented a canoe from Dolphin's boathouse near Key Bridge early Saturday.

When they returned, Sanders said, one was paddling the canoe, the other paddling the boat.

Sanders said they told William Jameson, keeper of the boathouse, they found the craft drifting near Roosevelt Island in Georgetown Channel.

Jameson told them, Sanders said, they had better notify police, but, he said, the men paddled off with the boat on the grounds "finders are keepers."

1 Man Near Death After Police Fight, 2 Recovering

Wounded Officer Better; Shot Twice During Gun Battle With Armed Caller

One man is near death and two others, including a policeman, are recovering from wounds following an early morning shooting yesterday at 713 Euclid st. nw.

Police said the shooting, in which 15 shots were fired, followed an attempt to seize Milan Gordon, laborer, 4518 Banner st., Brentwood, Md., after a report that Gordon was armed, and seeking his estranged wife.

Visitor Armed

Savannah Gillis, Gordon's brother-in-law of the Euclid st. address, called police when Gordon waved a revolver after failing to find his wife.

Pvts. Leonard J. Faina and Douglas E. Smith of the Tenth Precinct responded.

As they entered, police said, Gordon started shooting at them from the top of a stairway to the second floor. Faina and Smith returned the fire.

Faina, who is 25 and lives at 6600 Westmoreland ave., Takoma Park, Md., suffered two wounds in the thigh. He is in satisfactory condition at Garfield Hospital. The policeman is a Navy veteran, married, and has one child. He joined the department in 1947.

Gillis also is at Garfield Hospital with a wound in the abdomen, and reported by hospital authorities to be in satisfactory condition.

Gordon is at Emergency Hospital in critical condition, and may die. Police said he has a wound in the leg, and one in the upper abdomen. He is under police guard. No charges have been filed against him pending the outcome of his injuries.

A police checkup showed that four bullets had been discharged from Gordon's gun, five from Faina's, and six from Smith's.

Jerry Kalivas, 2503 Champlain st. nw., manager of the Ivy City Grill, 2000 Fenwick st. ne., said that burglars obtained cash, whisky, and a gun valued at a total of $309.

In an apartment at 1125 5th st. se., Francis McRae told police a burglar entered a clothes closet and took a billfold containing $23. William E. Embry, 2121 12th st. nw., reported loss of $75 from a dresser.

Sarah A. Jones, 2031 Florida ave. nw., told officers some one entered her second-floor lodgings and took a wallet with $80 in cash.

And Fred Widmern, 2633 Colston rd., Chevy Chase, Md., said that at McCarthy's Grill, 2910 14th st. nw., of which he is proprietor, burglars took cash and 14 cases of whisky for a total loss of $541.

Another gun was taken at the Paramount Appliance Co., 2150 Georgia ave. nw., according to Albert Bass, manager. Also taken was $124 in seven envelopes, for a total of $144.

Morton Hoyt, 48, Is Victim of Cancer

Morton Hoyt, 48, son of the solicitor general of the Taft administration, and a member of a family which for years alternately scandalized and delighted Washington society, died of cancer yesterday in a Philadelphia hospital.

Hoyt

Other members of the fabulous family included his sisters, famous poet, Elinor Wylie, and novelist Nancy Hoyt Curtis who survives. A brother, Henry Hoyt, killed himself. His grandfather, Morton Hoyt, was once mayor of Philadelphia.

His leap into the Atlantic Ocean from the deck of a liner coming into New York made front-page news across the country in the final days of the roaring twenties. Although it was reported he jumped on the dare of pretty Elsie Ekengren, then the 17-year-old daughter of the late Swedish minister to the United States, Hoyt later declared he did it to settle an argument on the danger of jumping into the ocean.

Mr. Hoyt, thrice married Eugenia Bankhead, much married sister of Tallulah, the actress. The first marriage was annulled and the other two ended in divorce. He was her first, second and sixth husband.

His death followed by two weeks that of his mother, Mrs. Henry M. Hoyt, 1701 Rhode Island ave. nw. His father died some years ago.

Mr. Hoyt moved to France in 1930, and returned in 1944 to Washington with word that he was back home alive only by virtue "of my thick skull," which refused to be more than creased by a bomb fragment that ripped through his bed pillow in a prison camp. He spent 26 months as a prisoner of war.

He was reported dying in Nice, France, in 1934. And Eugenia Bankhead, informed that her former three-times husband was in serious condition, set out for France with intentions of marrying him again.

However, upon arrival in Nice, Hoyt refused to see her.

"I came all the way to make sure he was not dying," she pouted. "But he insists on locking himself in his bedroom and being without me."

Eugenia was accompanied by her pet monkey, who sat on her shoulder, eating peanuts and tossing shells at the reporters.

Hoyt and Eugenia first married in 1920. The union was annulled. They were remarried a few months later. In 1928 they were divorced but remarried the same year. The third divorce came in 1928.

Nancy Hoyt Curtis fitted into the pattern of the times by creating some slight stir in the late twenties when on her wedding day, her engagement was broken while hundreds of guests were preparing for the ceremony. She was later married several times.

Another sister was Elinor Hoyt Hitchborn Wylie Benet who aside from her highly regarded poetic efforts managed to gain notice from her other activities. They included leaving her husband and baby for a man she was unable to marry for years. She divorced him soon after they did marry, and died finally in a fall down three flights of stairs.

Beside his sister Nancy, he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mildred Hoyt.

Girls Nation, 98 Strong, Invades Capital to Try For Government Offices

NINETY-EIGHT alert, teen-age politicos, who have romped through successful elections in 47 States plus the Panama Canal Zone, will try their vote-getting skill in the national game this week. The youthful ones are delegates to Girls Nation, a citizen training program sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary.

All States are represented except Mississippi. A polio epidemic prevented the delegates from coming. Forty-seven of the group are experienced State Governors, including Joan Rankin of Cincinnati, only Negro in the group. Other delegates recently completed terms as state treasurers, judges and lawmakers. And they are here to elect a president, representatives and senators, and to take over the executive and judiciary during a seven-day intensive campaign and study of all branches of the Government.

Shortly after registering yesterday afternoon at Mary Graydon Hall on the University Campus, 25 delegates expressed their intention of seeking the presidency of Girls Nation. Already the girls are joining the Nationalist and Federalist Parties. Campaigning and election of officers will be interspersed with sightseeing, speechmaking by Representative Katharine St. George, United States Treasurer Georgia Nees Clark, Senator Karl Mundt, Undersecretary of State James E. Webb, Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Matthews, Secretary of Defense Louis A. Johnson and Senator Margaret Chase Smith.

President Truman will outline the duties of the Chief Executive when he receives the politicos Thursday noon at the White House. The delegates will swing into formal action today, 7:30 p. m. when principal speakers will be Mrs. St. George and Mrs. Clark.

Except for a few mishaps—such as losing a pocketbook in church; misplacing a return railroad ticket, all was calm around headquarters yesterday as the delegates received their official pins from Mrs. John Engesath, national chairman of Girls Nation. Greatest excitement, romantically speaking, are the numerous special delivery letters and orchid corsages received by pretty, blonde Rosemary Rood of Chico, Calif., Governor of California's Girl State.

Schools Opening Soon

YOUNGSTERS like to postpone thinking about the reopening of school until the day before it happens, but mothers are already looking forward, you might say, to the annual event which takes the kiddies off their hands for a few hours a day.

Besides, there are plaid skirts and bright sweaters to buy, new trousers to fit legs which have miraculously lengthened by inches over the summer, and the inevitable pencil boxes without which the tinier tots do not feel able to cope with their three R's.

There isn't too much time to get ready: District schools open September 12 as do the Montgomery County and Prince Georges County schools, while the Arlington schools get off to an even earlier start on September 6, with Alexandria following on September 8.

Fashion Editor Peggy Preston will tell you all about back-to-school fashions for grade-school and teen-age youngsters, in her column in this section Thursday.

Tours for Children

BUT BEFORE school starts there are still some idle days to be filled. When it rains, or the youngsters are tired of their out-of-door activities, you could squire them down to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Or don't squire them, as they are permitted in alone. Tours through the crime detection laboratories which people from 5 to 95 seem to find fascinating, are conducted every half-hour weekdays from 9:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. The tour itself takes an hour. The 9th st. and Pennsylvania ave. entrance brings you most conveniently to Room 5634 from which the guided tours start.

If your small fry are more interested in money than manhunts, they might enjoy a trip through the Bureau of Engraving. Twenty-five-minute tours conducted weekdays from 8-11 and from 12:30 to 2 p. m. give a glimpse of how the greenbacks are printed. The main entrance at 14th and C sts. sw. is the best one to use.

Or let them guide themselves around the Smithsonian Institution. You know best what would appeal to your particular child or children, but almost all youngsters like to look at the Indian Village, the Eskimo Village, the stuffed whale, the fierce stuffed gorilla, aand the collection of rocks and shells. These are all in the Natural History Building at 10th and Constitution ave.

Across the mall at 9th st. and Jefferson dr. in the Arts and Industry Building is Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" to capture the imagination of the boys (and maybe the potential aviatrixes) and the exhibit of dresses worn by wives of the Presidents. There are also, as the information department will tell you, "so many other exhibits we couldn't possibly begin to list them."

The Commerce Department has a room in which Indian-made goods are sold (just off the lobby inside the 14th st. entrance) which children often find interesting. There are also occasional exhibits there of foreign handcrafts, with a Turkish exhibit scheduled for September 12-24.

Guide to Events of Interest

FOR IDEAS of things to do and places to go, you might glance occasionally at the suggestion pamphlet put out monthly by Mrs. Rosamond Goodman of the D. C. Recreation Department. The guide includes lists of clubs and recurring and special activities scheduled during the month following its publication. It's posted on bulletin boards in public libraries, Government buildings, churches and other public places. And if you happen to know of some new club or event that would be of interest to others, you might contribute the information to Mrs. Goodman at HO. 8132.

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

MRS. JOHN ENGESATHER, national chairman of Girls Nation, signs up Mary Lisle Tucker, 16, of McKenney, Va., and Mona Lou Evans, 15, of Mt. Lake Park, Md., for the seven-day citizenship training course sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary. Miss Tucker and Miss Evans were among the 98 delegates from 47 States and the Canal Zone who registered yesterday for the Girls Nation Assembly at American University

Ask Anne — About Removing Window Screens

How can I move window screens which have been newly painted and stuck? T. N. B.

One method to loosen a stuck screen is to place a block of wood on the frame of the screen and strike it with a hammer. Moving the block along all sides, striking it in each position, will possibly move the screen sideways in the window enough to crack the paint and loosen it. If this doesn't work, then run a thin-bladed knife such as a putty knife along the crack between the screen and the frame to cut the hardened paint.

The entire operation will be easier if you will wait until we have had several days of dry, clear weather, because during high humidity the wood in the screen may have expanded enough to make removal more difficult.

How can I cure sticking piano keys? T. N. B.

If the keys stick just during high humidity weather, they may be made to work free by placing a lighted electric light bulb in the interior of the piano for several hours. Be sure to use a bulb which is well protected by a wire covering so the bulb will not come in contact with the piano. If this doesn't relieve the sticking, I suggest you ask your piano tuner to correct the trouble on his next visit.

In regard to "Worried Mother," who was seeking some way of securing the back doors of her car so that children could not open them and fall out; I wonder if anyone else has suggested the new "safety control handles" made for this purpose? These replace existing handles. In fact, they are handles, but will operate only after you unlock them with a key from the inside. They may be easily installed with a screwdriver, I understand. "Business Week" had a description of them in its issue of August 6. "Worried Mother" can address the handle company at 1685 McDonald Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., for further information. It may be that she can also find a local motor company that carries them. P. H. T.

Tobe Says: It's Navy For Winter

Yes, navy blue for winter is what we said! Does that surprise you? Spring navy is an old American custom, but winter navy has appeared as the smart new dark winter color only in the past two years.

Women love it too—because it's just as useful as black, just as easy to wear with furs, and has more life than most dark winter colors.

Navy is wonderful in winter coats, especially in casual fabrics—fleeces, chinchilla, tweeds—but also in broadcloth.

Navy is stunning in crisp fabric dresses—satins, taffetas, brocades; and at the other extreme, in simple wool jerseys.

You can even have navy furs—the new midnight blue Hudson seal (dyed muskrat) or navy blue mole.

Your Baby

Food Intake Will Be Less The 2d Year

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

A mother who is accustomed to the truly astounding portions of food which a less than 1-year-old baby can consume, is certain to feel that her 18-to-24-month-old child is going to starve to death. It is generally believed that the child will keep on eating as much food or more as he grows, instead of cutting down on his intake after he leaves the first year milestone.

"My 2-year-old is such a picky eater," writes Mrs. L. H. P. "I feel sure she is hungry but she will only take a few spoonfuls and then she pushes the food away. Most of the time she will drink her glass of milk and then she says she is all through.

"She seems hungriest in the morning and then she eats a good-sized dish of cereal, some fruit sauce and a piece of toast. She won't eat eggs and we don't always have meat for her. She isn't fond of vegetables but she does drink a big glass of orange juice every day. Is this something to worry about?"

As with most mothers you are probably under-estimating the amount of food she eats. Maybe two or three teaspoonfuls of the different types of food would be enough to satisfy her. She does need meat, if she doesn't get eggs regularly, and you can buy this in cans for her—one can lasting for two or more days if kept on ice—even if you don't provide it for yourselves.

If she doesn't eat many vegetables, then increase the amount and variety of fruits she takes, in addition to the orange juice. She can have most of the fruits cooked, if not raw.

Don't make an issue of what she eats, or how much. Encourage her to feed herself, however messily. Let her hold food in her hand, giving her portions she can handle. Self-feeding is easier by hand than by spoon. Divide the glass of orange juice in two portions and don't give any milk until the end of the meal.

Cosmetics Cost Most U. S. Wives $7 Per Month

The average American housewife spends a little over seven dollars a month to make herself beautiful, but over half do all the beautifying in their own homes.

The ladies who do patronize the beauty parlors spend a little more—$12.50 per month—but they still buy cosmetics and toiletries for home use. These and other pertinent beauty habits of American women were revealed in a recent survey taken by the Woman's Home Companion.

Miss America (women 25 years and under) nearly always shampoos her own hair, the survey reveals. But once a woman gets past 45 she has her hair taken care of by a professional.

Another interesting change in the beauty routine of the American woman is the home permanent wave practices. In the last ten years the use of home wave kits has increased tenfold. Nearly half of America's homemakers now use them.

Birth Certificates

Today doctors, health departments, hospitals, and parents are much more careful about seeing to it that children have birth certificates. In the past, this wasn't thought to be too important. More and more, birth certificates are required. In Government jobs, for military service, when applying for passports or marriage licenses, and in many other situations they are essential.

Be sure that the necessary steps are taken to have your baby's birth registered. Keep the certificate where it will be safe. Even better, have some additional copies photostatted. It's quite inexpensive and you or the youngsters later are likely to need copies.

Housewife Stops Music For $26,000 in Prizes

New York, Aug. 21 (AP).—Mrs. Dorothe Pappenfort, a Columbia, Mo., housewife, tonight won $26,000 in prizes on the "Stop the Music" giveaway radio show.

The American Broadcasting Co. said Mrs. Pappenfort correctly identified over the telephone the mystery melody as "Buttered Peas."

The Lyon's Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK — Geraldine Brooks, who went to Stromboli to appear in the movie with Anna Magnani, will remain in Italy. The producers admired her work so much they signed her to do "Lost Paradise" in Milan . . . Mickey Cohen, the West Coast gang leader, complained that his haberdashery business has taken a dip, since the shooting attempt on his life. "Must be," a friend told the oft-shot-at mobster, "that people think your shirts all have holes in 'em" . . . Nate Blumberg, head of Universal, lunched with Tom Clark and Eric Johnston in Washington and promised them rare service from the waiters. The promise was fulfilled. Then Johnston heard the headwaiter address Blumberg as "Mr. Skouras." Blumberg, who resembles Spyros Skouras, confided to Johnston: "I never correct 'em for this error—because I get such good service in restaurants."

Claudie Catlett, whose sons testified at the Alger Hiss trial—their testimony was about the typewriter on which the Chambers pumpkin papers allegedly were typed—once worked for Dean O'Connor of George Washington University. Such was her admiration for Dean O'Connor that she decided to name her son in his honor. Mrs. Catlett wanted to get his full name, and found it on a George Washington diploma . . . That's why her son is legally named "Walter Joseph Aloysisus O'Connor, M.A., Catlett."

The speculation about the identity of the State Department characters in Merle Miller's new novel "The Sure Thing" is vain—because the author completed the prophetic manuscript long before the recent loyalty cases exploded in Washington . . . Tom Ewell, the Broadway actor who went to Hollywood to appear in the George Cukor film, was seen by Bing Crosby and has been signed to appear with Crosby and Charles Coburn in "Mr. Music" . . . Mrs. Vanderbilt's failing eyesight is so dim now that she "sees" visitors by running her hand over their faces. . . . The pretty Philadelphia socialite who was the prototype of Phil Barry's heroine in "Philadelphia Story" is riding hunters and jumpers in the Pocono Mountains horse show this week.

In Beth Israel Hospital in New York lies Avraham Doryon, the young Israeli actor who was injured in the Ben Yehuda st. bombing in Jerusalem. He's now reached the final phases of the plastic surgery he requires in the restoration of his face . . . The surgeons asked if he had a photo of himself—a recent photo so that they'd know how he looked before the bombing . . . Doryon played the leading role in "Dream No More." The bombs fell only a few minutes after the movie was completed. And so Doryon obtained a print of the movie, and had it shown to the plastic surgeons so that they could know their goal in restoring his face.

Concert Honors Dr. Marshall

Massanetta Springs, Va., Aug. 21 (AP).—With an attendance of more than 4500 at the three services today, the Bible Conference here celebrated the first Sunday of the two-weeks' study.

When the choir of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, of Washington, began the memorial concert this afternoon honoring the late Dr. Peter Marshall, pastor of the church, the open-air auditorium was filled to capacity.

Bishop Arthur J. Moore, Atlanta, of the Methodist Church, speaking on the subject, "Our Basic Need," said that thoughtful Christians cannot remain impervious to the wide swirl of mighty forces let loose upon the continuing life of the church.

Every age forms a bridge, according to the bishop, between that which precedes and that which follows it, "but the church of this epochal period is called upon to deal with unanticipated problems and a tactically revoluntionary society."

Bishop Moore told the Massanetta audience that secularism, name for that which our fathers called worldliness, has taken its toll of spiritual life.

"Whatever its material excellencies, and they are many, our modern civilization is largely the product of forces which are either non-Christian or anti-Christian. They are trends and tendencies active in modern life which endanger perpetuity of our Christian civilization and the life and witness of the church."

TRY IT

GO FOR AN UPSIDE DOWN HIKE

For people who like to hike and see interesting things along the way, "an "Upside Down Hike" will be something new. This type of hike will especially interest boys and girls who are in the "collecting stage."

If you want to turn up new and curious specimens, take a walk and tip over stones, bark, logs, and leaves as you go. The home life of ants, beetles, and other insects can be observed first hand in this way. Remember though, these little "islands" of life should not be destroyed for they are the nurseries for many of Mother Nature's creatures. These little towns supply living food for many animals and birds, and thus help to keep nature's balance of life. Don't forget to replace all rocks and logs back in their original position!

An Upside Down Hike need not be a long hike. Take along a collecting jar or can and save anything that arouses your interest.

What's the Verdict?

HAZARD OF 1949

Q. A man of mild temperament became enraged at a professional wrestling match because of the decisions of the referee. He finally climbed onto the edge of the ring and shouted threats at the referee. The management threupon caused two uniformed special policemen to escort him outside. A television camera recorded the incident, including the scene of the man being led away. The lens then was turned on the ring, and did not show the man being released by the police. He sues the television company, claiming that because the television audience saw him being led away by cops, but did not see him being released, his reputation has been harmed. Will he win?

A. The possibility of being televised at a public gathering is one of the hazards of modern living. It could reasonably be said that anyone who goes to a gathering which he knows is televised tacitly consents to being pictured if he happens to get within range of the camera. In the case at hand, defenses of the television company would be (1) that the man brought the notoriety on himself by his conduct, and (2) that the camera saw only what people at the arena also saw. The man would appear to have no case except in the very few States which recognize the right of privacy and compensate its unauthorized violation. Judgment for the company. F. L. D.

Letters From Ironpants Were First Person (And Singular)

Reminiscing about General Hugh (Ironpants) Johnson recently, David Kandel of 1311 H st. recalled the general's insistence that all his correspondence be written in the first person, but signed by a correspondence clerk.

The procedure often led to all sorts of complications. As, for example, when admirers would write in asking for the general's autograph.

His correspondence clerks had no alternative but to reply:

"Dear Madam: Due to the pressure of business, I regret that I am unable to comply with your request for an autograph. (Signed) Hugh S. Johnson."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

You recently wrote that a motorist is expected to drive to the right of a loading platform when the lane or lanes to the right are open, regardless of the directional sign on the platform.

Will you please give me your authority for this statement, particularly the traffic regulation.

I believe you are correct, but Judge Pine of the United States District Court took a contrary view in a case in which I represent the plaintiff, and you can therefore understand my interest.

I. H. Halpern

Dear Mr. Halpern:

My authority was Inspector Arthur E. Miller, who is in charge of traffic here. I did not ask for the specific regulation, so I can't cite it.

As I recall, Inspector Miller phrased it ". . . the motorist is expected to . . . etc.," and I wondered at the time about the legality of "expected." I couldn't figure out whether it was a legal command, or a pious hope.

It's a great consolation to find that lawyers and judges also have their troubles.

Bill.

When at 10 or 12 I creep
Into bed, why MUST you sweep?

Glencarlyn, Va.

. . . Residential community in Arlington County, on Lee Boulevard, bordering the Arlington-Fairfax County line

Named for the founding family, William Carlin, who came from Yorkshire, Britain, in the 1760's. Carlin was combined with Glen because of the shady glen formed by the Four Mile Creek that runs along one side, and, with a slight change in spelling, the name Glencarlyn developed. In 1887 the first planned subdivision in Arlington County was created on the Glencarlyn tract.

Even before Glencarlyn was opened up, Washington Permanent was offering practical, easy-to-meet home loan repayment plans to aspiring home owners. The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Vaughan Court-Martial Suggested

(While Drew Pearson is on vacation, the Washington Merry-Go-Round will be written by his old partner, Robert S. Allen.)

By Robert S. Allen

Members of the Senate "5-per-center" investigating committee are considering demanding that Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan be tried on military charges.

ALLEN

The Senators have discussed the matter with authorities on military law.

Basis for the proposed action are two factors:

1. Vaughan is not a civilian employe of the White House. He is a reserve officer on active duty and draws pay (over $10,000) from Army funds. He is therefore subject to Army regulations and rules of conduct, the same as any other active officer.

2. By his own admission, Vaughnan has accepted gratuities and gifts. This is in direct violation of a specific prohibitory Army regulation. In addition, other charges made before the Senate committee lay him open to disciplinary action on the ground of "conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman."

What the Senate investigators have in mind is a formal demand that Vaughan be haled before a court-martial.

Such a demand would put President Truman on the spot. It would be wholly up to him to decide whether Vaughan is tried. The President has immediate jurisdiction over Vaughan, and no one in the Army would risk ordering him court-martialed without presidential approval.

One Republican Senator, a party leader, was opposed to the whole idea of taking any action against Vaughan, unless the Democrats took the initiative. His view was that it would be better GOP strategy for Vaughan to continue as a prominent member of the President's entourage. In that position, he would be a vulnerable target in next year's elections.

"We could plaster the country with billboards reading 'Have you got your freezer yet?' " the Republican leader pointed out. "If we give Truman the chance to get rid of Vaughan, he might take us up. I would if I were in his place. We don't want to outsmart ourselves in this matter."

R. I. Democrats Set

Rhode Island Democratic chiefs have it all set on who will get what as a result of the elevation of Senator Howard McGrath to Attorney General. This is the deal:

McGrath's seat will be filled with a temporary appointee, who will not run next year. He will merely keep the place warm for Gov. John Pastore, who will be a candidate next year for the remainder of McGrath's term which expires in 1952. As Pastore's successor in the governorship, the leaders have selected Representative John E. Fogarty.

Both Pastore and Fogarty are New Deal Democrats. The reshuffling arrangement was chiefly in accordance with Pastore's views. He is the real Democratic boss of the State.

ECA Feels Uneasy

ECA authorities are uneasy about the situation in France.

Currently, , political and economic conditions are quiet there. Inflation has been stopped, and the de Gaullist and Communist threats have subsided. Also, the Chamber of Deputies is in recess and a large portion of the population is enjoying the first quiet vacation period since the war. But behind this peaceful surface are a number of disquieting factors.

Chief of them is the wide disparity between prices and wages and the known preparations of major unions for a new round of pay demands. These are expected early in the fall, with the Communist unions taking the lead.

Housing Ditty

A take-off on the famed lyric of the late Gallagher and Shean featured the banquet the national housing conference gave congressional supporters to celebrate the enactment of the President's low-cost housing program.

Charles Abrams, New York lawyer and author of the take-off, sang it as follows:

Oh, Mr. Bricker—Oh, Mr. Cain—
How can we kill off housing without pain?
With Sparkman, Taft and Douglas
Our slums may soon be bugless,
And Liberals like Morse will never wane.
Oh, Mr. Bricker—Oh, Mr. Bricker—
Oh, Mr. Cain—Oh, Mr. Cain—

Senators Bricker (R., Ohio) and Cain (R., Wash.) were leading foes of the measure. Among those at the banquet who laughed heartily at the ditty were Senators Taft (R., Ohio), Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), John Sparkman (D., Ala.), and Representative Helen Douglas (D., Calif.).
